WARNS U.S. OF ECONOMIC CHAOS

Sir George Paish, English Economist, Charges States Is Contributing to Threatened Financial Catastrophe

CLAIMS STATESMEN MUST CHANGE VIEWS

Efforts to Prevent Nations Meeting Obligations to Each Other Will Reduce World to Bankruptcy

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—In a speech before the assembly of all nations that statesmen change their political and economic policies is the only means of averting an approaching world catastrophe, Sir George Paish, English economist and former adviser to the British Treasury, said tonight in an address before the thirteenth annual convention of the American Manufacturers' Export Association. "The statesmen of all nations," he declared, "are engaged in a common effort to prevent the nations from meeting their obligations to each other and thus reducing the whole world to bankruptcy. Already the policy of the statesmen of Europe is fast bringing the strongest nations of Europe to ruin, and before long the statesmen of the other nations of the world, it permitted to do so, will bring their countries into a similar condition."

TO Avert Catastrophe

"It is, therefore, of the greatest possible moment that business men and peoples of all nations should seek to understand and to realize the disastrous consequences that must ensue from the present policies of those responsible for national and international affairs, and should insist upon such change of policy that will avert the catastrophe towards which the entire world is now moving with ever-increasing rapidity."

Sir George charged that the United States was contributing to the general economic chaos by its new tariff law and by refusing to accept payment for the obligations due her in any medium of exchange other than gold. Declaring he was not criticizing the United States, which, he said, had done during the war "and still recently," everything the civilized nations could expect of her, he said:

In Goods or Services

"A creditor cannot refuse to take payment of its debt in the goods or services which the debtor nation can supply directly or indirectly, and therefore the endeavor of the American Government to prevent the import of goods and produce by erecting tariff or other barriers for the purpose of keeping out the goods of other nations is action which I am convinced neither the United States nor the American people have fully considered."

LABOR PARTY WOULD SLICE WAR FORTUNES

Policy to Bring About Equitable Distribution of Nation's Wealth, Says Manifesto

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The manifesto issued by the National Executive Committee of the Labor Party declares against revolution and says: "Labor's programme is the best bulwark against a violent upheaval and class war."

"A democratic government can be made effective in this country without bloodshed and violence," the manifesto says. "The policy of the Labor Party is to bring about a more equitable distribution of the national wealth by constitutional means. This is neither bolshevism nor communism, but common sense justice."

The manifesto says that labor will not penalize theft, but that it will require some retribution from the profiteers out of the huge fortunes made in the war. The taxation of land values is advocated.

On December 14, a Mayor, six Aldermen, three School Trustees and one Police Commissioner will be chosen at the polls. They will have a great influence in the community's affairs. The community's affairs are your affairs. Help choose these men. Get a vote.

KEMALIST ALLEGES BIG DEVASTATION

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 25.—Ismet Bey, the Kemal representative here issued a statement today accusing the Greeks of extensive devastation of Thrace during their withdrawal. "General Harrington," he said, "was deceived if he thinks the Greeks have done no harm. He assures us that the evacuation was orderly. Our information is otherwise."

The Nationalist Government has notified the international Red Cross committee that the Greeks must release all Turkish civilian prisoners immediately or the Turks will declare all Greek civilians in Anatolia war prisoners.

JOINT PROTEST ON FOREIGN SUPPLIES

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The British Incorporated Society of Meat Importers is one of the latest organizations to protest against the action of the management committee of the British Empire Exhibition in deciding not to restrict the exhibition restaurant supplies to Empire resources. The council of the society met at Southfield today and passed a resolution bearing on the matter.

Copies have been forwarded to the committee of the British Empire Exhibition and to the Colonial Secretary, the Minister of Agriculture, President of the Board of Trade and the High Commissioners of the various Dominions.

CLAIMS ALLIES FAILED FRANCE

Agreements of Support Gone, Says Viscount Grey—Also States Coalition Brought Empire Into Peril

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Considerable interest has been aroused by Viscount Grey's allusion, in his address at Bradford last night, to France having been "let down by her allies since the world war." Viscount Grey was British Foreign Secretary at the outbreak of the war, retiring upon the formation of the Lloyd George ministry in 1916.

"Before we criticize France's action," he said, "let us realize the facts. When peace was concluded France had two agreements. One with Great Britain and one with the United States, that she would have the full support of Great Britain and America if attacked in the future by Germany."

"These were not included in the treaty of Versailles, but they were as much a part of the peace as was the Versailles treaty. They made an enormous difference to France. They are gone. I admit it was not the fault of Lloyd George's Government that they went, but it does not make it any better for France whose fault it was."

"A great deal of trouble has been caused France, due to the fact that the whole peace must have been a different aspect in her eyes when those two great safeguards, whereon she must have so greatly relied disappeared. If these agreements still existed they would secure France now and for years hence."

Viscount Grey added, however, that exclusive treaties could not assure permanent security and would lead to international conflict. Therefore if France or any other country wanted security let it be brought about by strengthening the League of Nations and making that organization an all-embracing as possible.

He contended that the policy of the Coalition Government had brought the one and only danger to the world, the necessity of fighting a single-handed war in the Near East and had imperiled the Indian Empire.

The Coalition had maneuvered the country into the appearance of being the one and only Mohammedan power in the world and had thereby brought the British Empire into real peril. The new Government must convince the Mohammedans in India that there was going to be fair play.

PROTECTION FROM INCAPABLE DRIVERS

Grand Jury Recommendations Include Age Limit, Licence Examination and Prison Sentences

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Legislation to afford greater protection against incompetent and intoxicated automobile drivers is recommended by the Grand Jury in its report presented to Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald this morning.

Amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act are recommended in the interest of public safety on the streets. The amendments are:

"No person shall drive or operate a motor vehicle on any street or highway who is not the holder of a licence authorizing him to do so, either owner or chauffeur. Applicants for licence to pass an examination as to their fitness to drive."

"No person under the age of 18 years shall drive or operate a motor vehicle, and no permits shall be granted to persons under age allowing them to drive."

"That clause 28 be amended to provide that all drivers of motor cars as well as intoxicated drivers may be imprisoned for a period not exceeding twelve months in case of conviction for second or third offence."

The maximum penalty under Section 29 is a fine of $300.

ELECTION FIGHT IN AUSTRALIA

Premier Hughes in Opening Address Deals With Immigration, Soldier Problem and Near East Trouble

PRESENTS PLAN TO DOUBLE POPULATION

Believes Commonwealth Will Play as Important a Part in Cotton Production as It Now Does in Wool

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Premier Hughes of Australia, when opening the Federal election campaign, contended, says a Reuter dispatch from Sydney, that the Government's record justified a renewal of public confidence. He recognized that the only course open to Australia in the recent Turkish crisis was to stand by Great Britain. Australia's declaration of willingness, he declared, to put a substantial army in the field if the Turks persisted in appealing to force, was a definite factor in inducing Kemal Pasha to accept the invitation to the conference which settled the dispute.

Immigration Imperative

Dealing with domestic affairs, he said the need of immigration was imperative and urgent. An agreement between Britain and the states of Victoria and Western Australia had been completed, and if the other states also adopted it, a stream of immigrants would double the population of Australia in a few years. In pursuance of its pledges to stand by the returned soldiers, the Government had spent $122,000,000 on them and their dependents. Premier Hughes challenged comparison in this respect with any other country.

The Government, he continued, intended to introduce legislation providing for a convention for the purpose of recommending alterations in the constitution which was not now suited to Australia's needs.

Believing that Parliament would meet early in the new year, he said the new capital, the Government said, the Premier would proceed immediately with the erection of the necessary Parliamentary and administrative buildings. Control of the sugar industry would be discontinued as times were becoming normal. As sugar was a staple of the country, the Government was pledged to effect adequate protection against black labor in the sugar industry.

The Commonwealth line of steamers would be placed under independent control. A fixed price would be guaranteed for cotton for three years, with full confidence that Australia would play as important a part in the production of cotton as it did now with wool.

EXCITEMENT HIGH ON SOUTH AFRICAN VOTE

Members of Rhodesia Council Enter Protest Against Premier's Appeal to Voters to Join

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Cabling from Salisbury, Rhodesia, Reuter's correspondent says excitement is running at fever pitch over the referendum to be taken up Friday on the question of Rhodesia joining the Union of South Africa. Local members of the Legislative Council of Rhodesia have sent a message to Sir Charles Haggard, British High Commissioner, protesting against the appeal to the Rhodesian electorate by Premier Smuts of South Africa, urging them to vote for the Union.

The protest expressed surprise at Premier Smuts' presuming to criticize the constitution offered by His Majesty's Government.

The message also requests Haggard, if he sympathizes with the protest, to send a personal message to all polling stations in Rhodesia impressing upon the voters "not to allow themselves to be influenced by Premier Smuts' appeal, which is not disinterested."

INSISTS AMERICA BE REPRESENTED

Lord Curzon Wants Real U.S. Plenipotentiary in Attendance at Peace Conference at Lausanne

PARIS, Oct. 25.—American representation at the Lausanne conference was insisted upon by Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, in the course of an interview today with Count De Saint Aulaire, the French ambassador at London. He pointed out that the American observer was present at San Remo when the Treaty was drafted and it would be helpful if the United States were represented at the forthcoming conference, principally when the subject of the Straits was discussed. It was even desirable that the United States should not merely observe but take a real plenipotentiary. The French government will reply to Lord Curzon's proposals at an early date. It appears probable that a compromise will be reached regarding the Italian proposal to allow Russia, both to attend the discussion of the Straits and sign the treaty, which would remove in advance two sources of dispute—delay with the Turks or the Russians.

WOUNDED PRIEST WHO DENIED MURDER STORY

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 25.—J. Bolduc, aged 18, called at St. Joseph hospital, at Sherbrooke, Quebec, last night, to use the telephone, called the chief of police and told him a murder had been committed at the hospital. Rev. Father Heleach, chaplain, took the receiver and addressed the chief, that such was not the case, whereupon Bolduc is alleged to have drawn a revolver, fired two shots, at Father Heleach, one passing through his chest and the other lodging in his back. Bolduc is under arrest and Father Heleach lies in a critical condition.

COMMANDER CHARGED WITH LOSS OF CRUISER

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The loss of the British light cruiser Raleigh off the coast of Labrador, on August 8, had its sequel at Portsmouth when a court-martial was opened on Commander Leslie Charles Boscawen, who is charged with having negligently or by default, stranded and lost the cruiser. A plea of not guilty was entered.

CHALLENGE TO CONSERVATIVES

Mr. Lloyd George Admits Perplexity in Efforts to Find Out Differences Which Were Cause of Breakdown

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Former Prime Minister Mr. Lloyd George began his campaign in London today with a feeble speech to the Conservative members of Parliament, throwing down the gauntlet to the Conservatives, who attacked upon the late Government, he declared, "left no alternative but to 'Spread the War.'"

The little Welshman stood by his word, his speech of last Saturday, reiterating his intention to support any party or government pursuing a policy of peace, economic and steady progress, neither revolutionary nor reactionary.

He counselled calmness and courage and asserted the interests of the country must come first.

For National Unity

"We have stood for national unity, that is, unity of all classes, all parties and sections for the purpose, first of all, of winning the war and afterwards extricating the country from its present difficulties."

It was not their fault, declared Mr. Lloyd George, if a party faction had arisen and unity had been for the moment broken. The war had been won and the country was getting through its troubles in peace gradually and throughout the world respect and admiration were being accorded to the British Government.

"Our credit was being built up in a way that amazed the world," he continued, "and the country was beginning to turn, unemployment was going down. In fact, success was becoming so manifest that some people thought it time to relax the effort."

He expressed his confidence that the Conservatives alone could defend the fabric, the institutions and the principles of the country for which he stood.

"We are here," he said, "to see how the situation which has been brought about by indirect, impulsive, thoughtless men shall be handled that Great Britain shall not come to any harm through their deeds."

Mr. Lloyd George said he was unable to explain the "breakdown" that he was perplexed when he tried to find what the differences were.

"They are not to be found in the speeches of the 'breakdown' men," he continued, "and I have looked at the speeches delivered as an indication of the policy of the new government, and I am still more perplexed."

He thought it hardly possible while breaking up the great national coalition that had achieved so much in war and peace in order merely to substitute Lord Salisbury for Lord Balfour as Lord President of the Council.

He asserted that conditions here were tranquil and that he had seen conditions abroad that had now been given Coalition Credit.

The ex-Premier credited the Coalition with settling the trouble between Turkey and Greece by strong and firm action, which showed Great Britain meant to have peace on terms honorable to our country and which would be one of security for the world.

To have peace, he said, one must be strong. Great Britain was not going to extend her responsibilities, but she must not be afraid of her responsibilities. A Britain that goes to the councils of the world afraid of her responsibilities is a Britain that will cease to count from that moment.

He said that in order to follow the traditional policy of the country "we must stand for moderation in the treatment of foreign affairs and work with our allies to the best of our power, but not abandon the great British policy for which this country has always stood. We must not be tied behind the chariot of any other land."

On the question of reparations, Mr. Lloyd George said there should be no attempt to impose on Germany any payment beyond her capacity. "And what is within her capacity," he added, "she should pay."

He said that the policy that would give Great Britain must pay America all her debts, but that she must exact nothing from Germany, nor from France, nor from anybody else. It was for fair play, but we must have it for our own citizens too."

The League of Nations. Mr. Lloyd George said he had never changed his mind regarding the League of Nations, and he favored the (Continued on Page 15)

MANY ISSUES IN AUSTRALIA

Premier Hughes Faces Newly-Risen Enmity From Former Docile Farmers' Party in Forthcoming Election

LAST SESSION MARKED BY ANGRY SCENES

After Seven Years as Prime Minister, Lack of Outstanding Figure to Succeed Him May Help Leader

SEVERAL factors promise to lead to the general elections in the Commonwealth of Australia, to be held December 9, an unusual degree of interest. One is the newly risen enmity between the Prime Minister (Right Hon. W. M. Hughes) and the leaders of the Country (or Farmers') party, which has hitherto proved a more or less docile supporter of the Nationalist Ministry; another is the growing sentiment in the Liberal wing of the Nationalist party in favor of a reversion to pure Liberalism; and a third is the operation of a redistribution measure which may have an important bearing on the composition of the new Parliament.

In the present Parliament the state of parties, excluding the Nationalist Speaker (Sir Elliot Johnson) is: Nationalists, 27; Country party, 25; Labor, 24. It will be seen, therefore, that even including the Speaker, Mr. Hughes has only a clear majority of one over the other two parties. In reality, however, his position has been much more secure than the figures would suggest. There is not a shadow of community of interest between the low tariff Country party and the high protectionist Labor party, between the representative of the rural producer and the spokesman of the Trades Hall, with its Continued on Page 5

IRISH CONSTITUTION PASSES LAST READING

Grants Political and Religious Freedom in Ireland and Forbids Law Favoring Any Cult

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The Irish Constitution passed its third and final reading in the Dail Eireann today. Deputy John Milroy described the document as the greatest triumph for Ireland since the Battle of Kinsale.

The Constitution in its final form is substantially the same as originally framed, in accordance with the treaty negotiated between the Irish delegates, headed by Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, and the British Cabinet members, headed by Premier Lloyd George. The treaty provided for a Constitution, and this was later drawn up in Dublin and given Cabinet approval in London.

A few minor amendments were made in the course of the discussion of the Constitution by the Irish Parliament, but all the essential features of the original pact remain, and particularly the creation of Ireland as the "Irish Free State," its establishment as one of the Dominions of the British Commonwealth, with its own Parliament, and its religious organization; and with the oath of allegiance to the King, which still preserves the tie uniting Ireland with the rest of the British Commonwealth.

The document grants political and religious freedom in Ireland, and under it no law favoring any cult may be passed. Opinion and the right of association are unhindered and untrammelled. There are two elective houses, and all citizens of both sexes enjoy the right to vote. The initiative and referendum are provided for.

Ratification of the treaty by the British Parliament has been looked upon as a formality. Within the past week, however, a certain element of uncertainty has entered into the minds of the Irish people as to the attitude of the Lloyd George government, which negotiated the treaty and the fact that a new Parliament is to be elected in the near future.

Leaders of the new British government, however, have expressed themselves as favorable to the ratification of the constitution by the new Parliament, which is expected to be elected and brought into session in time to pass the ratification act before December 6, when the treaty will be fixed by the Anglo-Irish treaty for completing the legislation under it expires.

SIX LOSE LIVES ON RESCUE TUG

Crew Which Went to Relief of Two Norwegian Steamers During Storm on Upper Saguenay River Missing

QUEBEC, Oct. 25.—Six lives are reported to have been lost in the storm on the Upper Saguenay River yesterday. The missing men were acting as a crew of a tug that went to the rescue of two Norwegian steamers torn loose from the wharves by the violence of the storm. They were the captain of the two steamers, two pilots and two sailors. Their names are not available. The tug was last seen at 9 o'clock last evening and was presumably lost.

PARTIES READY FOR GENERAL ELECTION

Mr. Lloyd George's Speech and Labor Manifesto Places British Electors in Possession of Platforms—Details of New Premier's Policy Explicated Today

Speculation on Posts in Ministry Unfilled

LONDON, Oct. 25.—With Mr. Lloyd George's speech today, and the issue of the Labor manifesto, all the forces for a general election are marshalled and the public placed in possession of the party platforms.

Premier Bonar Law, who started today for Glasgow, travelling in an ordinary passenger train, was accorded no opportunity for wayside receptions and speeches such as characterized Mr. Lloyd George's journey last week to Leeds.

May Fill in Details

He may possibly in his speech tomorrow fill in the details of his policy already outlined. He is expected to announce an extensive reform of administrative departments with the object of retrenchment. This reform probably will affect the ministries of labor and transportation, the duties of which may be relegated to other departments with a considerable saving in the expenses of administration. This, however, can hardly be regarded as a new policy; rather, it would be carrying out the recommendations of the Geddes and other economy committees during the Coalition regime.

Joins Other Leaders

In general outline, however, the platforms of all the parties are known. Perhaps most striking in this connection is the fact that Mr. Lloyd George, after some hesitation, joined his voice today with the leaders of other parties against Socialism and Labor.

The former Premier thus placed himself in line with Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Churchill on this question, though in a somewhat less pronounced manner. He declares:

"Labor is against social order; we must contend that policy. He confesses he has no election slogan, and this is characteristic of the manifestos of all the parties with the exception of the Labor party."

Decided Difference

Mr. Lloyd George continues to base himself on the imperative need of a Coalition for solving the post-war problems. In essence there is very little to choose between the pronouncement of Mr. Bonar Law and Mr. Lloyd George, and the general public is likely to find it difficult to differentiate between the two policies. On the question of relations with France and Russia, there is a decided difference. The new Premier advocates close co-operation with France, while the former Premier would use any co-operation antagonistic to England's own interests.

Mr. Lloyd George favors a pact with Russia, which, it is thought, the new Government is not likely to countenance. Mr. Lloyd George also stands by the Balfour note with respect to interrelated and American debts. There has been considerable curiosity as to whether the new Government will accept the Balfour note.

Exports to United Kingdom Increase

Both Canadian Export and Import Trade With United States Fell Off During Last Twelve Months

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Canada's imports for home consumption during the twelve months ended September, 1922, totalled $122,904,813 as against $208,841,941 in the previous twelve months, and $1,225,779,894 in the twelve months ended September, 1920. The decrease from the total of the year ended September, 1921, was more than $175,000,000, according to trade figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In the same period, 1921-22, Canada's exports decreased $182,243,318 from $176,000,440 in the year ended September, 1921, to $192,796,843 in the year ended September, 1922. In the twelve months ended September, 1920, total exports of Canadian produce were valued at $1,209,919,175. Exports of foreign goods from Canada during the three years were: 1920, $26,507,783; 1921, $15,396,622; 1922, $12,633,424.

A Growing Trade

Imports from the United Kingdom during the year ended September, 1922, totalled $127,437,701, against $137,424,015 in the previous twelve months, and $217,270,658 in the year ended September, 1920. Exports to the United Kingdom in the same years showed growing trade in the twelve months ended September, 1922, as compared with the previous year. In the last twelve months under review, Canadian products to the value of $311,254,751 were exported to Great Britain, against $285,017,699 in the previous year, and $375,469,244 in the year ended September, 1920.

Trade with the United States showed a decrease during the twelve months just ended. Imports from the United States during that year were valued at $492,942,597, against $445,446,424 in the previous year, and $319,046,657 in the preceding year. During the year just ended, the United States purchased $222,424,044 in Canadian products as against $277,275,374 in the previous year, and $512,454,517 in the twelve months ended September, 1920.

PROPOSES QUEBEC BUILD BREWERIES

Commission Will Only Be Complete, Says Hon. G. E. Amiot, When It Obtains Full Control of Sales

QUEBEC, Oct. 25.—That the Government of this Province should buy or build breweries, operate them and take full control of the sale of beer as it does for alcohol and wine, was suggested today in the Legislative Council by Hon. G. E. Amiot, in moving the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

He held that while the Government was responsible for all the expenses which resulted from the too great freedom with which beer was sold, it only received five per cent of the profits from these sales. The liquor commission would only be complete, he said, when it had succeeded in obtaining full control of the sale of beer as it now had for alcohol and wine. The address was seconded by Hon. W. F. Villars and was carried.

The Upper House then adjourned until November 7.

WANTS YACHT CUP WHERE IT CAN BE PROPERLY FILLED

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Sir Thomas Lipton intends to challenge for the American Cup again in 1924. Sir Thomas, visiting here, said he desired to retrieve the yacht cup as a strong as ever.

"I think it will be fitting to take the old mug back to where it can be satisfactorily filled," he said.

COALITIONISTS V. INDEPENDENTS

Independent Liberals Concerning Themselves With Defeat of Coalition Liberalism, Says Mr. Lloyd George

LONDON, Oct. 25.—"I will support any party and any government that pursues a policy of peace, economy and steady progress, neither revolutionary nor reactionary, and does it efficiently," former Premier Lloyd George told the Coalition Liberal members of Parliament at a meeting this morning. In another part of his speech he made the following declaration: "Great Britain must pay America all her debts."

"The Conservatives may win the next victory. I doubt that, but, supposing they do, that is not the end of the war between the two great conflicting ideas of the organization of society. Our business is to see that this blunder shall not do harm to our country."

"I will never let Great Britain down. I will not stand by any man who does. Whatever government is in power, we must not offer it any factious opposition. There must be no nagging criticism. There must be fair play."

Speaking of the breakup of the Coalition forces by the vote of the Conservatives last week, he declared there had been no difference of policy or principle within the Government before the breakup.

Mr. Lloyd George later in his speech told the Coalition Liberals that he was convinced their numbers were by no means small.

"The short journey I have taken recently in the country," he said, "indicates to me that there are a great many Coalition Liberals."

The Independent Liberals, he said, "are still contenting themselves still less with principles than with piques. They are not concerning themselves with what happens to Liberalism, but with the defeat of Coalition Liberalism. If 'dis-hard' candidates are put up to attack Coalition Liberals, then we shall have no alternative but to spread the war," he declared. "If we fail we will resign. If the Conservatives mean to smash up national unity all around, we will stand for it all around."

THREATENS HOLDERS OF CANADIAN BONDS

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Officials of the Finance Department had little to say this morning when informed that the superintendent of insurance of the state of Illinois was said to have threatened to prosecute companies operating in that state if they did not get rid of their holdings of Canadian bonds. It was pointed out that either the laws of the state or the charters of the various companies incorporated by the state might restrict the foreign investments of the companies. As far as can be learned, however, the state of Illinois is the only one which has taken such drastic action in regard to Canadian bonds.

FASCISTI LEADER ADMITS SATISFACTION

Threat to Rule Italy Legally or Through Insurrection Met With Concession From Government

NAPLES, Oct. 25.—The challenge of the Italian Fascist party that it would rule the country legally or illegally, that it would seize the Government either through Parliament or through insurrection, has been satisfied by the promise of the constitution of Parliament, the reform of the electoral law and general elections, declared Deputy Benito Mussolini, leader of the Fascisti in his address today in the first session of the annual convention of the organization.

Deputy Mussolini said that he already had been asked what conditions the Fascisti demanded in order to accept participation in the Government. "I demanded the portfolio of foreign affairs, war, navy, labor and public works," he said.

He further stated that he would not enter the cabinet himself. He also demanded, he said, the post of commissioner of aviation for his party.

The Government had offered the party the posts of ministers without portfolio, the leader asserted. Several posts as under-secretaries of state were tendered, but he refused them, he stated.

VANCOUVER LIBERALS RE-ELECT PRESIDENT

May Have Spoken Too Warmly, Says Attorney-General in Referring to Attack on Mr. Stevens

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—After a cool and clear analysis of the charges recently levelled from the same platform by Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P., against the administration of the Attorney-General, Mr. C. G. Buchanan, M.P., told the annual meeting of the Vancouver City Liberal Association in O'Brien Hall last evening that every detail of the charges reflecting upon his personal integrity was absolutely false and untrue.

"With this analysis of the facts I leave Mr. Stevens to the judgment of his own fellow-citizens," said the Hon. Mr. Manson.

Of his own outburst at Victoria, when he called the Conservative Federal member a "yellow cur," the Attorney-General said that perhaps he had spoken warmly, but he said: "When I don't resent an attack on my personal honor I will no longer be fit to be your attorney-general."

Given Ovation

J. A. Campbell was re-elected president by acclamation and was greeted by an enthusiastic ovation lasting several minutes when he resumed the chair. In expressing his appreciation, Mr. Campbell made a reference to the Vancouver's lack of representation in the cabinet.

"Vancouver is not represented in the cabinet," said Mr. Campbell, "and during the next few months we must press strongly for that representation to which we are entitled. I hope that before many months our efforts will be crowned with success."

In commenting on this the Hon. John Hart said: "None can deny that Vancouver is entitled to representation in the cabinet, and you may be surprised to find greater sympathy for the Government for this demand than you imagine."

Prior to the address by the two cabinet ministers the members endorsed the resolution adopted by the Western Liberal convention at Winnipeg in 1917, demanding reformation of the Bank Act by giving local agricultural banks with power to give credits to farmers, by placing a bank commission in control of the administration of the Bank Act, and by the inauguration of a National Reserve Bank.

To Investigate Civil Service

Hon. John Hart made the announcement that a committee of the Legislature would be appointed at the coming session to investigate the civil service for the purpose of finding what service to the public was rendered and whether the cost was justified. This, said Mr. Hart, was his answer to the opposition criticism of excessive cost of the civil service. The minister also placed himself on record as in favor of devolving the income tax to aid the municipalities in educational matters.

Mr. Hart denied that the Liberal Government had been stingy with the municipalities, saying that whereas the Conservative Government had paid them only $300,000 a year, the present Government was giving them $2,200,000.

The Minister of Finance submitted published documents to show that the credit of the Province had improved in the past six years, and added that against the gross debt of $68,000,000 the Government had a sinking fund of $9,000,000 and other securities, reducing the net debt to only $29,000,000, which he claimed was not an excessive increase from the $25,000,000 debt, which he said the Province had when the Liberals came into power. He stated that whereas three Eastern provinces, with a gross debt of over $300,000,000, had only $9,000,000 sinking fund among them, his Government had that amount against a $29,000,000 debt.

NEW CABINET IS SWORN IN

Coalition Ministry of Former Premier Lloyd George Passes Into History as New Government Functions

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Cabinet of Prime Minister Andrew Bonar Law was sworn in at Buckingham Palace this morning. As a result of the taking of the oath of office the members of the Cabinet began to function as the new Government immediately. With this act the Coalition Ministry of former Premier Lloyd George officially passed into history. Previously in the day the members of his late cabinet went to Buckingham Palace and surrendered their seals of office to the King. The Ministers of Mr. Bonar Law's new Government received the same symbols of power in turn from the hands of their monarch. Thus closed one of the most exciting epochs of the political history of England. King George having attended to all the necessary functions in the changing of the ministry, returned to Sandringham to join the royal family. Except for the opening of another chapter of the equally interesting possibilities, including that of the election campaign, the country would be prepared to settle down to that "tranquillity" which has been made the chief characteristic of the new Conservative political temple.

WOULD DEMAND VOTE ON DRY PROVINCE

Alternative If Government Grants Beer and Wine Sale in Hotels, Say Prohibitionists

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—If the Provincial Government submits a referendum to the people of British Columbia with the sale of beer and light wines in hotels, and cafes, the Prohibition Association will demand that the whole question of the liquor traffic be opened and an alternative provided for the province, an absolutely bone dry province.

This was the outstanding feature of the vigorous presidential address delivered this morning by Mr. C. G. Buchanan, to 200 delegates gathered from all over the Province to attend the eighth annual convention of the Prohibition Association. The convention will continue for two days.

President Buchanan in his annual address directed criticism at the administration of the Act, stating that whereas only a year ago there were 20 liquor stores in the Province, there were now between 60 and 70. He more particularly directed his criticism at the establishment of stores in small towns.

He said that while the sales of the Government through the liquor stores amounted to $9,000,000 annually, bootleggers had stolen away at least half the trade and were selling about the same amount as the Government.

ALLEGED LOOTING AT VLADIVOSTOK

Soviet Government Protests White Guards, Aided by Japanese, Are Robbing City

MOSCOW, Oct. 25.—Charges that Vladivostok is being looted by the White Guards of the Primor Government, with the assistance of Japanese officers and soldiers, are made in a joint note sent to Japan by the Soviet Government and the Far Eastern Republic.

The note also protests against the enforced delay in the occupation of the city by Far Eastern forces, contending that this is due to the attitude of the Japanese, who give the White Guards an opportunity to rob the city by evacuating goods to foreign ports. The communication placed responsibility for violations and losses on the Japanese.

GROUP EXECUTIONS ON CHARGES OF TREASON FEARED

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 24.—All the Greek soldiers who were formerly Turkish subjects have been isolated by the Turkish Nationalists for trial by special military tribunals on charges of high treason, according to advices received today by American relief agencies here. It is the fear in well-informed circles that these Greeks will be executed in groups of a hundred or more. The Allied missions in anticipation of something of this sort have dispatched an appeal to the Ankara Government asking that generosity be shown these prisoners.

VANCOUVER MAY VOTE ON MONEY BY-LAWS

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Indications are that Vancouver taxpayers who are qualified to vote on money by-laws will be asked to consider their election to pass upon proposals for $442,000 expenditures. These are summarized under six by-laws: $100,000 for general waterworks distribution; $100,000 for sewerage; $100,000 for roads improvements; $50,000 for fire protection in Stanley Park; $25,000 for purchase of a grandview school site; and $25,000 for municipal hall construction purposes. $154,000 previously voted to the parks board for general development of parks purposes.

MAY INTRODUCE TITHING

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Owing to a drop of some five thousand dollars in the church contributions over last year, it is quite probable a system of tithing may be introduced in the Baptist churches. When the annual financial report was presented at the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec in Watford Road Baptist Church yesterday, it was shown that the contributions throughout the churches had amounted to $149,482, or $5,343 less than the amount of the year previous. It was the first year since the introduction of the convention plan of Suspension for two days without pay because of insubordination and failure to obey instructions in connection with a recent motor accident case, was the decision of the Board of Commissioners which set yesterday morning and considered the allegations made by Chief of Police John Fry against Sergeant-Inspector Thomas Heatley, whom the chief suspended on Monday and asked the commission to investigate the matter.

Following yesterday morning's meeting Commissioner W. E. Stenland, who was instructed to make public the action of the board, announced that the board had confirmed the action of the chief.

HARBOR MARINE WINS CIVIL SUIT

PLAINTIFF FAILS TO CONVINCE TRIAL JURY

Judge Finds Much Irrelevance in Action Relating to Victoria's Shipbuilding Days

After deliberating their verdict for more than an hour yesterday in the Supreme Court the trial jury found for the Harbor Marine Company in the suit brought by Mr. B. Livingston Robertson, who claimed recompense for his alleged services as purchasing agent to the defendant company's shipyard during the building of the Government steamships, Canadian Winner and Canadian Traveler.

On motion of Mr. W. J. Taylor, K.C., counsel for the plaintiffs, Mr. Justice Morrison gave judgment with costs for the Harbor Marine Company. Mr. H. B. Robertson, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff.

Continuing the evidence for the defense yesterday, Mr. Oscar C. Bass, solicitor for the defendant company, and for his manager, Mr. C. J. V. Spratt, entered what amounted to a categorical denial of most of the allegations made for and by the plaintiff. Mr. Bass said that he got the plaintiff's job as accounting to the defendant company, at a time when Mr. Robertson was much in need of employment; and that there was then question neither of salary nor of any status as purchasing agent. The witness said that the plaintiff was never made purchasing agent to the company; and that his salary of $300 a month was ample recompense for his services.

In his charge to the jury, the learned judge commented once more as he had done many times during the trial—on what he characterized as the irrelevant matter which counsel had sought to introduce into the case. They had become involved in such a mass of detail, thought the judge, that there was no knowing what sort of a verdict the jury might return; they might bring in a verdict hanging Mr. Spratt and sending Mr. Robertson to prison for life.

The summing up constituted a plain intimation from the judge that there was little evidence in support of the plaintiff's contention. Some of the plaintiff's witnesses, he had acted as purchasing agent for the company. As the court saw the situation, it was a time when everybody wanted to take advantage of what they thought were the millions available from the inexhaustible treasury of a government providing for the needs of a war without precedent in all history. Some of these people, in the learned judge's phrase, thought that the Government was throwing millions about as pennies were thrown by a drunken sailor.

CASE AGAINST CITY OFFICIALS REMANDED

Magistrate Jay's Illness Prevents Trial of Mayor Manning and Three Aldermen

Trial of the criminal charge preferred against Mayor William Manning and Aldermen E. S. Woodward, David Leeming and R. W. Perry, which had been set for hearing yesterday before Magistrate Jay, was further postponed until tomorrow. Mr. W. W. Northcott, J.P., who occupied the police court bench, announced that Magistrate Jay was indisposed, and that all business before the court would be adjourned until Friday morning.

All the defendants, accompanied by their respective counsel, were in court yesterday, ready to go to trial. Alderman J. Heiden Gillespie, also a member of the aldermanic finance committee, but not included in the charge, was present. Payment of $100 to Police Commissioner Walter E. Stenland, was conspicuous in court, where he had planted himself squarely alongside of his colleagues. The alderman's demeanor lent color to the statement, already attributed to him, that he intended to give whatever support he could to the defendants.

Mr. Frank Higgins, K.C., counsel for the informant, Mr. George Morphy, of the Ratepayers' Protective Association, agreed with Messrs. D. S. Tait and H. W. Davey, counsel for the defense, that the case should be called again tomorrow, when the course of events will depend upon the health of Magistrate Jay, who is suffering from an attack of bronchitis.

NO COUNTRY HOLDS RIGHT TO DOMINATE

Dean Coleman, in Address, Attacks Gradualist Idea of Union of British and U.S.

An idea of a "gradualist Imperialism," union of Great Britain and the United States which would be powerful enough to dominate the other nations of the earth, should be avoided, Dean H. T. J. Coleman, of the University of British Columbia, declared in an address before the British-American League at a luncheon in the Dominion Hotel yesterday.

No man, he said, would be so foolish as to believe that the dominion of one nation is the right of any nation, nor was any nation sufficiently perfect to permanently dominate the thoughts and actions of other nations, the speaker said.

He dealt with the peril of the idea that the British and Americans were the chosen people. "That is a pagan notion," he exclaimed. "We are chosen people only in the way that the Japanese, the Hindus, that all races on earth are chosen people. We are chosen in the dignity of experience, of history, and of our possibilities, each to do our own work, and none to dominate."

Some people believed, said the Dean, that it was unthinkable that any but friendly relations should exist between the people of Canada and the United States, and that there was no need of cultivating these relations. This idea was a wrong one, for human nature was fickle.

Not Irreconcilable

National and international relations were not two irreconcilable ideas, as some people imagined. There had been a time when the patriot's creed involved disparagement of other people, but those days were passing. The theory that a nation could only grow at the expense of other nations was a wrong one. Fortunately the idea that the gain of one man in business meant the loss of another was a false one. The essence of trade was that both parties should benefit. Nationalism and internationalism were both necessary, were complementary to each other.

Taking up the question of fear that Canada would become absorbed by the United States, the speaker remarked that he understood that political campaigns had been waged against too close relations between the two countries. While the Americans might assimilate Canadian in some respects, it would only serve to accentuate the peculiarities of the latter. It was unnecessary for Canada to be swamped with American ideas. While the problem was a difficult one, life itself was a difficult problem, and Canadians should not acquiesce in the ways that satisfied the people to the south and which did not seem to the former to be the highest type of living. On the other hand here should be no stultifying isolation.

Common Movements

Dean Coleman stated that he had noted with pleasure the fact that some of the American universities were now teaching Canadian history. Under the histories of the two countries were specific movements that belonged to the continent as a whole. There was, for example, the westward movement of population, met by a similar movement from the Pacific Coast eastward. It was impossible to understand any social movement in Canada without studying the same in the United States.

The people of Great Britain and the United States sometimes looked upon themselves as the trustees of democracy, and they should make a joint effort to understand and apply it. Democracy was not a form of government but an attitude of mind. "It seems to me," said the speaker, "that democracy has been the cohesive force in active force throughout all time, and has been the life of all governments worthy of the name."

Bishop Rehfeldt presided at the luncheon. Following the address by Dean Coleman a vote of thanks was moved by Bishop A. Macdonald and seconded by Mr. J. R. Cowell.

BUYING ON MARGIN INVOLVED IN SUIT

UNUSUAL ACTION BETWEEN LOCAL DIVORCES

Defendant Asks Court to Non-Suit Former Wife on Ground Stock Speculation Was Illegal

The customs of stock brokers, in dealing with accounts in the name of one person, when opened by another, became a matter of testimony given before Mr. Justice Morrison in the Supreme Court yesterday, when the action of Mrs. Elizabeth Alkman against Messrs. Burdick Brothers, Limited, and J. A. Alkman came on for trial.

An unusual turn was given to the trial when Mr. W. J. Taylor, K.C., acting for Mr. Alkman, moved for dismissal, at the close of the case for the plaintiff, on the grounds that, by the plaintiff's own evidence, the transaction was a speculation in the rise and fall of stocks on margin, and as such was illegal under the Criminal Code of Canada.

A Domestic Transaction

The plaintiff is suing for the return of moneys which she alleges she entrusted to Mr. Alkman, her former husband, for investment through Messrs. Burdick Brothers in Canadian Pacific Railway stock. Mrs. Alkman testified that she gave Mr. Alkman $1,000 of her own money, and that he invested it in C. P. R. stock on margin. Some months later, when she had become separated from her husband, she gave the stock brokers orders to sell; and then found that the stock had been sold some time before on the orders of Mr. Alkman.

"I nearly dropped dead when I heard of it," Mrs. Alkman informed the court.

Mr. Oscar C. Bass, appearing for the plaintiff, had intimated in his opening that on the part of Mr. Alkman the defence would be that the money was his, being the proceeds of a sale of his furniture by the plaintiff. Mr. Taylor, however, after eliciting from Mrs. Alkman the admission that she knew the investment was a speculation in stock on margin, said that he was so confident of his point that the action must fail because the transaction was illegal, that he would rest his case there, and call no evidence.

Brokerage Procedure

Mr. Ernest Miller, who appeared for Messrs. Burdick Brothers, based his defence on the theory that Mr. Alkman was acting as the accredited agent of the plaintiff, the parties to the action being at that time on good terms.

Mr. Rowe, manager of the stock department of the defendant company, said that Mr. Alkman was the only person dealt with in the transaction involved. It was the custom of the brokerage houses, said witness, to look to the person who brought in an order to protect the stock purchased on margin. While the order had been first of all entered in the name of Mrs. Alkman, the defendants had always regarded Mr. Alkman as her agent; and had consequently honored his order to sell the stock.

The trial will be continued today. The plaintiff is claiming for the difference in value of the shares of C. P. R. stock on the date of actual sale and on that when she gave the belated order to sell, which difference she alleges amounts to $5,000.

BOARD WASHES HANDS OF ACT ENFORCEMENT

Police Commissioners Go on Record as Opposed to Dealing Further With Lord's Day Observance

So far as the Board of Police Commissioners of Victoria is concerned the Lord's Day Act enforcement is something with which it will refuse to deal.

At a meeting of the Board held yesterday morning at police headquarters, consideration of a communication from Attorney-General Munson was read. Hon. Mr. Munson stated that the Lord's Day Alliance, through Messrs. Crease & Crease, solicitors for the Alliance, had requested that he issue his fiat authorizing prosecutions of certain alleged offenders against whom he was informed, evidence has been secured. The Lord's Day Alliance, the Attorney-General wrote to the Board, desired to make a test case under the Lord's Day Act, and as it had been his attitude heretofore that requests for prosecutions should come from the Board as the elected body, he asked what action the Board would take in respect of the matter.

Following the meeting of the Board, which was one held in camera, Commissioner W. E. Stenland stated that the Board was unanimous in deciding that it did not desire to assume any responsibility for action in the matter and considered that the whole matter of enforcement of the Lord's Day Act should be placed upon a Provincial basis.

A resolution to that effect was passed by the Board and a copy will be forwarded to Attorney-General Munson.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The coming session of the Provincial Legislature is expected to conclude in six weeks time. If the example of the past is to be followed, and if the actual legislation to be dealt with is to receive due consideration, it is obvious that some attempt should be made to shorten the debates on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne and the Budget. The privileges of each member of the Legislature on a few occasions during each session to pass administrative records in review and to talk on any conceivable subject, is one that should not be lightly curtailed, but from the public viewpoint we believe there is a desire that more time should be devoted to actual legislation. In that way it might be possible to prevent so much time at each session being consumed by amending acts which have been ill conceived and which experience proves to be at fault.

We gather that there is a definite attempt on the present occasion to have all the governmental legislation ready when the session opens. This will be a radical departure from the methods of the past. At the same time the fact that the bulk of legislation may be prepared in advance does not mean there will be any more time given to it in the Legislature, unless there is some effort by mutual arrangement to curtail debates in the House. In the debates on the Address and the Budget practically all the public interest centres on the statements of the Premier and the Leader of the Opposition. With rare exceptions the contributions of the other members are perfunctory statements regarding their constituencies, and in a specific way all of these can be laid bare at the time the Estimates are under consideration. It is a delicate thing, no doubt, to suggest that anything any member may say in the Legislature is lacking in interest, but candid compels the admission that five-sixths of the time occupied in the debates on the Address and the Budget signifies little or nothing so far as actual accomplishment or the dissemination of information are concerned. It is this time which should be given to actual legislation. If the debates allowed to be as long drawn out as in the past, the programme of legislation will have to be railroaded through the Legislature if that body is determined to complete its deliberations in advance of the Christmas holidays.

CIVIC PATRIOTISM

The suggestion advanced that candidates should come forward for municipal office pledged to serve without remuneration if elected is a healthy sign of the renewal of the strengthening force of civic patriotism. For some years to come the dominant issue in our municipal life will be the need of retrenchment. As an earnest of a desire to pursue this purpose it would be helpful to know that those who are serving in the capacity of our elected representatives are doing so without any desire for personal gain. It is true that the laborer is worthy of his hire, but then, those who are thoroughly equipped for municipal office, from the standpoint of ability and experience, have already accumulated their hire in other fields of endeavor. The process of thrift, which should have characterized the careers of those who are elected to safeguard the economic welfare of a community, should have, before they entered the municipal arena, won them a sufficient competence to that in the spirit of honorable patriotism they can offer their services to their fellow men without money and without price.

An excellent impression would be created all round if it became known that Victoria had a Mayor and Council who were serving their city and engaged in solving its financial problems without any remuneration whatever. The citizens would at once realize that such elected representatives were in office with the sole desire of protecting the citizens' interests, and not for any purpose of personal gain. There is nothing very onerous in the duties of a Mayor and Council in a city of this size. It may be pointed out that the experience of the past has shown that men can occupy municipal office and still carry on their private occupations, and, as well as these, there are scores of individuals who have made their stake in life and have an easy competence who are well qualified to give their services to the city. When this question of municipal office is translated into one of civic patriotism it is understood that better results will be secured in municipal government. This is a time when economies in every branch of municipal effort are sorely needed. Every candidate in the coming election should be asked for a declaration of policy on this subject.

MR. HENDERSON'S "WAR"

The statement of Mr. Arthur Henderson, the leader of the Labor Party in Britain, to the effect that "labor has declared war on private enterprise" is unlikely to stand his followers in good stead during the coming election campaign. Mr. Henderson is a slave of phrases, and, perhaps, he does not mean what he says, for even he would stand aghast at the interpretation that could be put on his words. Private enterprise is the life blood of modern progress. Were it to be destroyed and all humanity to be turned into automata it would be a sorry world indeed. We can only gather that Mr. Henderson's policy is to nationalize everything. The curse of nationalization is that incentive, inspiration, much that contributes to the desire for individual betterment, are taken out of the heart of man. It ought not to be so, perhaps, and possibly will not be the case when human nature is changed. Mr. Henderson, however, has no authority over human nature. His phraseology, on the eve of a general election in Britain, is somewhat unfortunate. It is difficult to believe that the greatest pioneering race in history will take him at his word and subscribe to a doctrine which is opposed to British instincts and traditions. The majority of Labor itself will not approve the tendencies implied in Mr. Henderson's war.

ARMISTICE AMENITIES

From a Casualty

Man a brave deed has been chronicled and lauded since history began, but for each one recorded a hundred noble acts have faded into oblivion. The recent war produced a host of heroes whose deeds are sung and a countless number whose stories of unconscious heroism will never be known. Among these last many an episode is buried in the hearts of the doctors and nurses who worked in the great emergency hospitals that sprang up like mushrooms in far-away England.

As the front went on the press produced its daily chronicle of deeds and actions in that mysterious shadow land "over there," and behind the lines in "Brighton" went on the steady, unobtrusive work of mending and patching the casualties to send them back.

In great open wards, containing from 20 to 30 beds, the business of overhauling the "brighties" was carried on. It was here that the uncomplaining, unflinching battles of life were fought over and over again. Did they grumble? No! A respite from the terrible nerve strain of the front was to be welcomed. The owner of a wounded arm was counted lucky. The possessor could get up and walk about, envied by the less fortunate owner of a shattered leg. At meal times, however, things were reversed, and Bill, who had been enjoying his walk, would hear:

"Bring that tray here, you poor creature, while I feed you!" "Lights Out" brought another insight of the splendid spirit of these men. As children they revealed in a few minutes of wholehearted merriment—perhaps, because it was against the rules, but most likely because they were children still and untarnished by the brutalities of war. Then, the night nurse, who was wise, would retire to the "office." Phil, who, before the war, had been a through the air to the accompaniment of "Whizz Bang, George!" and "Minnewurfer, Bill!" Thump! and, as he came, an occasional lapse into profanity amidst shouts of glee. Injuries might twinge with a foreboding wrench, but better than all medicine and care, a light heart had prepared them for a healing sleep.

And, in passing, may I say a word for the Major. How many of us, if we but close our eyes, can see the slight, erect figure in white and masked like a Ku-Klux Klan man, moving in and out of the "theatre," or hear him humming "Cassidy" as he hums the words "Many and marvelous were the cures effected by this little man, with his cap tipped over one eye, his cigar at an upward angle, and (authorities miss this) his tunic probably buttoned here and there in his enthusiasm to "get on the job."

Ah, Major! Many a man in Canada today is blessing you for the skill and kindly persistence that sent him back to his people.

MYSTERIOUS CASE OF MARY ELLEN

The report from Halifax that Mary Ellen, made famous last Spring by the "spook" investigation at Antigonish, Nova Scotia, has been placed in an insane asylum, did not prove a surprise to Dr. Walter Franklin Pierce, president of the American Society of Psychical Research, who spent some time in Antigonish. Dr. Pierce regards this rather as a confirmation of his solution of the mystery. However, he adds, Mary Ellen may not be insane in the proper sense of the term. Many sayings, remarks, take cases of extreme hysteria, and the like, because there are no proper institutions for treating such ailments. After Dr. Pierce had spent three nights in Mary Ellen's home in Antigonish, with a view to running down to their source the ghostly manifestations, he declared that Mary Ellen herself was responsible for them. Mary Ellen's case, says Dr. Pierce, is what he would call mental immaturity and nervous instability. She is "intellectually inferior" and is called a "moron." In Antigonish, he says, they tell many ghostly tales. Probably Mary Ellen was much excited by these, and was afraid in the dark. Her hysteria was conceivably an "objectification" of the stories she had heard, and a re-enactment of them by her in a sort of somnambulistic state. And to call all this the "mystery" which she gained was very bad for the girl.

Sir,—In regard to the item concerning myself in connection with a life class being started at Leighton House, I wish it to be understood that it was printed without my knowledge or consent. Psycho-Analysis

Sir,—An article under "Letters to the Editor," entitled "Psycho-Analysis," by Mr. R. S. Baker, I find worthy of some comment. His caustically humorous cogitations alluding to various critics who promiscuously condemn certain cults, or to those of M. Emile Coue or Freud and others, struck me as being refreshingly amusing as well as an incentive for further thought, and they accord to some extent with some ideas of my own.

The study and search for greater knowledge appertaining to the mysteries of psychological phenomena is a conspicuous item in the scientific endeavor of the present age. The knowledge of such things which has already been acquired by only a small reconnoitering party compared with what will be common topics of conversation when we, many generations to come, shall have no longer any interest in the temporal "things mundane."

As far as I can see from my limited scope, the theories and ideas which certain individuals have spent years in investigating and experimenting upon—and have actually found beneficial results in—must most certainly be acceptable as solid facts and accomplishments.

It is a very easy matter for some who have learned everything about their own peculiar vocations or hobbies, perhaps, to condemn as false or absurd something they have never given any great study to or cannot understand.

There are several reasons why they are prone to "knock."

(1) The ideas conflict with their own. They do not bother to look any further into the matter. It ends there.

(2) It may be "in their interest" to knock them.

(3) There may be in these condemnations a certain amount of what might be termed as "propaganda"—very subtle, of course—a topic which certain individuals have taken up, but which would lapse into a few very busy months of "concentrated figuring out" having to do with the "big game" leading from it and so many tributes leading to it. Evidently there must be something actual in all these many theories and facts if they bring good results and prove themselves of "logio" value to humanity as a whole, since they required years of study and experiment to accomplish them.

There is as much in one as in the other. Everything within the human capacity for understanding is possible.

Some are accepted by certain groups, others by others, and in accordance with the similarity of the workings of the individual mental complexes of the respective groups, since there are millions of degrees of "human nature" or better, and channels of thought. A case of the individual gathering in sympathetic groups, consequently there will be plenty of knocking, either from the "Tolerant" or the "Intolerant." A very good hint to knockers may be found in a certain photoplay which was shown a few years ago here. "Tolerant" or "Intolerant," it takes all kinds to make up a world, and whatever is of value is accorded to of some kind of "knocking."

The world is only doming its first long trousers now. The whiskers have yet to grow.

Educational Questionnaire

Sir,—In regard to the answer to the question that high school education should be charged for and the proceeds go for scholarships for the people whose people cannot pay for them, can assure the unknown writer that there could not be a better bit of bad luck! The movement to help the clever children, but the ordinary ones, I am such an ordinary mortal that I have a very strong fellow feeling for the other chap who is in the same fix as I am.

As for cutting the curriculum, fowl rush in where angels fear to tread. As sure as you think you have stopped the unnecessary study some-body springs up and proves in no uncertain manner that there is the thing that is far excellence for the student.

Then the how about the cost of the graduate—$10. My dear, simple person, whoever you may be, that is but a very small portion of what the ignorant, stupid, vicious and criminal people cost us. Count the two up. On the one hand a citizen who is an asset in every way, who, if he or she marries, looks to it that the children take the same place in the community as did the parent, indeed, I think that the short time they have come in contact with good teachers, have learned in some way how to improve their conduct is to the community.

Your correspondent should also read the lives of successful men, and we are beginning to add women, and how many of the prominent people, past and present, sat on office stools at sixteen! The assertion made is too sweeping for consideration.

Then the teacher, who is beginning to be the stone wall for every good to butt at. Granted they are higher paid than ever, and it certainly behooves them to give good measure for money paid, but stop and think what they have to put out for their position. It takes them all of five years and pay for their own books.

Consider the charges of the dentist and the doctor, and you will find their pay is but a fair average. In fact, the other morning I paid a sweep two dollars for him to clean my teeth. He did his work well, and I would not be such a piker as to howl about the cost. My experience of teachers is that they are more conscientious, as a body, about their work than any other profession.

By all manner of means stop waste, but in saving your penny don't lose your pound. As for the questionnaires one-half of the questions can never be answered till eternity, and it ill behooves us to constitute ourselves to the position of gods.

Good education is the cheapest thing in the market today, irrespective of dollars and cents.

Chinese and Education

Sir,—Kindly allow me space to reply to the very interesting letter in Saturday's issue. Mr. E. B. Gung has in very concise form put before the taxpayers of Victoria one of our intensest forms of spending money on education methods. I will take the letter by portions. He came to Victoria from China as a young lad and learned the Chinese language and took the opportunity of thanking the teachers, etc., but omits thinking the taxpayers. That is very bad form on his part. He calls his fellow-subjects innocent Chinese pupils. If they are innocent, the parents certainly are not, as I will point out later from his letter. After we taxpayers have built palatial schools, probably as fine as a mandarin's palace, Mr. Gung goes on to say that all nations are to plunge into war and that China has the best army at hand and several large arsenals, and that China is not sleeping, but rising up to a greater level, and that—now read very carefully—the Chinese Government will be controlled solely by the returned students from abroad. Talk of the German spies in England before the war! That never led us they were in England for an express purpose. Confession is good for the soul.

I have no reason to doubt Mr. Gung's statements. Probably being educated here, he has learned it is better to tell the truth always. His letter conveys to my mind that boys are sent from China to learn the ways and language of British people at the British schools, and after a few years they return to China to control the Chinese Government's commercial and international relationship between Canada and China. The returned students, and if we here in Victoria don't mind our p's and q's the Chinese Government, controlled by Chinese students, intend to make things hum, and lastly (copied from the letter), agitate there is no gain but harm, and involving a greater expenditure, in putting up schools for the Chinese. The returned students, and if we here in Victoria don't mind our p's and q's the Chinese Government, controlled by Chinese students, intend to make things hum, and lastly (copied from the letter), agitate there is no gain but harm, and involving a greater expenditure, in putting up schools for the Chinese.

So much for Mr. Gung. He like thousands more and a good education in Victoria, and finding there is no outlet for his abilities, hikes off to pastures new.

While on this subject of education I would like to ask the following question: How many of the young men who they certainly are not boys) when they have passed through the higher schools, will be able to procure a living in this city of 40,000 people? I have inquired personally of a large number, and the answer I generally get is, denials, excuses and other professions, and in which the few, appears to me very much overcrowded. I presume the lucrative callings of bricklayer, plasterer, coal shoveler, and the like, are to be left to the duds who leave at fifteen years of age, and farming, truck gardening and the worst paid of callings will go to cripples, old men and imported Chinese.

Shooting "Accidents"

Sir,—With the advent of hunting the usual series of shooting "accidents" has begun. They will probably continue throughout the season, and the only cure for them is a brief notice in the papers of a regrettable incident. We shall read how "A. Brad into a moving bush, and a few days and who leaves a widow and five little children."

What a bit of bad luck! The movement of the bush might have been caused by a sheep, or a goat, or a pig, or a cow, or a horse, or a bachelor with no children, or a stranger.

Rarely B's widow and children could never be so absurd as to expect A. to risk the loss of a fat buck, just because B. was, to his knowledge, somewhere near and had probably shaken the bush.

Or, but only whisper it. A. may be heard pleased with his shot that the expression of his regret would indicate that he was not so fat. Just because B. was, to his knowledge, somewhere near and had probably shaken the bush.

Why is culpable negligence, or negligent homicide, manslaughter, or whatever it may be, condoned if committed by a "sport" in his endeavors to procure flesh by shooting a deer? Anyhow, perhaps in the stomach? A hundredth part of such culpable negligence would entail severe punishment in any other circumstance: for instance a motor accident, or a fall from a height, or the death of a fellow being. If a man is less to appeal to a sense which does not exist, that of true sportsmanship and fair play, in men who are prepared to inflict wounds and maimings which will entail a lingering death, and who are equally careless of the safety of their companions.

The only hope of placing any check on promiscuous shooting is the common danger is to make it a criminal offence, the burden of proof that there was no negligence, resting on the defendant.

A quite remarkable feature of the public, who allow their friends and relations to be "shot up" all over the country without demerit.

Yet I cannot believe that the consensus of opinion is not strongly condemnatory of such callous disregard of human life.

"HELLO" GIRLS SECURE A VOTE

Chief Operator Relieves Each Operator in Turn at Switchboard While Their Declarations Are Taken

While the service to the public went on uninterrupted, the "hello" girls on duty at the Victoria exchange of the B. C. Telephone Company yesterday registered as voters. Mr. F. C. Peterson, district commercial superintendent of the company, gave the Gyro Club every assistance in arranging to register the operators, and yesterday morning Mr. F. C. Peterson, who is one of the notaries giving their aid in the registration work, visited the exchange in the company of Mr. Waters, of the Telephone Company's office.

Miss Trickey, the chief operator, called each girl in turn, taking her place at the switchboard until she returned from making the necessary declaration. In this fashion, the operators became eligible to vote on October 14, while the switchboard service went on without interruption.

The registration of the telephone operators is only one example of the work being done by the corps of notaries public which has been devoting its efforts to building up the largest civic voters' list in the history of Victoria.

The Retail Clerks' Association has issued a circular to its members urging them to get their names on the voters' list, and pointing out that among the issues likely to be before the public at the approaching elections are those of the weekly half-holiday, daylight saving and taxation.

Registrations are being taken at the City Hall during the day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

VIOLIN AND PIANO RECITAL

Brahm's Sonata in G to Be Played by Misses Calvert

One of the immediate interesting recitals of the early Winter will be the violin and piano recital to be given by Miss Joy and Miss Una Calvert, violinist and pianist, respectively, on Monday, November 13, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The Misses Calvert are serious and painstaking artists, and it is their purpose to play one of the great master's sonatas, Brahms' "Sonata in G," besides other classics. Miss Joy Calvert is a pupil of the famous Maestro Leopold Auer, the master of Michla

Elman, Heifetz and Seidel, and Miss Una Calvert has been studying for the past two years with Mr. and Mrs. Josef Lhevinne, of New York, both of whom are world-famous pianists. This recital will be under the auspices of the choir of the church, and the management of Concert Manager George J. Dyke.

LADY BYNG FINDS WAR BRIDES HAPPY

OTTAWA, Oct. 25—Speaking of her recent tour of the West at the evening's session of the annual conference of the Women's Institute of Eastern Ontario, Her Excellency Lady Byng declared that all the British girls who had been at war brides and settled with their husbands on farms in the West, she had not spoken to one who wanted to return to the homeland except for a visit to their loved ones.

This valiant spirit, Lady Byng declared, was largely fostered and maintained through the excellent work in Western Canada of the various branches of the Women's Institute in Canada.

Lady Byng charmed her audience with the frankness of her remarks, and in her plea for assistance from the Dominion of Canada, but as an interested president of an active Women's Institute in a town close to her home in England.

ernment, if sustained by the vote of the country, would be disposed to retire steps in this particular direction, as the Balfour note is generally regarded as having impeded rather than assisted the arrangement with America.

It would seem, as between the Lloyd George party and the Bonar Law administration, that the election must likely turn upon the personal question of whether the country is still devoted to Lloyd George, whether there is any real action against the former Premier in consequence of four years' experience of his peace administration; in short, whether the rank and file of the Conservatives are willing to follow the bulk of the Conservative leaders in throwing over "the man who won the war."

Striking Pronouncement

The Labor Party's manifesto is easily the most striking pronouncement yet issued. The Labor Party in England is a strong party, making continual and rapid growth and possessing in its ranks important intellectual elements. Its programme, while containing nothing the party has not for a long time advocated, is calculated to inspire much fear, not only in capitalistic quarters, but also among the taxpayers generally, since it calls for many social reforms of a costly nature.

The manifesto attempts to meet the definitions from the other parties by declaring that the Labor programme is neither Bolshevism nor Communism, but its frank advocacy of a levy on capital, restitution from war profiteers, nationalization of mines and railways and other drastic measures will be considered by the capitalistic classes little distinguishable from communism.

In advocating taxation on land values, the party is only harking back to the policy of Lloyd George himself in his radical Limehouse days.

New Minister Sworn In

The formalities necessary to the change in government were completed at a council of the King at Buckingham Palace today, when the new ministers were sworn in as members of the Privy Council. Mr. Bonar Law was sworn in as First Lord of the Treasury, showing that he will take no other office. He is experiencing much difficulty in filling the remaining posts of his ministry, and was today obliged formally to announce that there would be some delay in the additional appointments. Goswop declares that the "die-hards" group is insisting on stronger representation in the Government than the Prime Minister is inclined to concede.

Oppose Every Acquisition

T. P. O'Connor presided at a meeting of the United Irish League at Westminster tonight to discuss the policy to be pursued by the Irish voters in England in the coming election. He declared that the changed political situation and the disappearance of the Irish question from English politics. There will be no representation in the new Parliament except the thirteen Ulster representatives. Joseph Devlin, who has represented West Belfast, has decided not to seek return.

A meeting of the Liberal followers of Lloyd George held in London today resolved that a candidate of day should oppose every sitting member of the Liberal party at the elections.

dren of a rural workers' trade union and the introduction of an eight-hour day and a fixed minimum wage for farm laborers; and Mr. Hughes, master tactician as he is, has adroitly contrived to accentuate the breach between the two parties, with the result that they have invariably been found on opposite sides of the chair in times of crisis.

Outlook Changing

But the outlook is changing. The present session, the last of the present Parliament, has been marked by angry scenes between Mr. Hughes and the leaders of the Country party, and in one division the Prime Minister found the entire party ranged with Labor against him. Indeed, it was only by a chance majority of one vote that the Ministry managed to escape defeat.

It reached a crucial stage when the Country party joined issue with the Ministry over the redistribution scheme proposed in accordance with the census of 1921 by an independent board of commissioners. Under this scheme Victoria loses one of her twenty-one seats to New South Wales.

This declaration of war was followed by an announcement that the Country party had decided to offer opposition to Mr. Hughes in the Bendigo constituency, in Victoria, though in 1913 it did not nominate a candidate. Now Bendigo, an outcome of the redistribution, has received a considerable accession of Country party voting strength. Mr. Hughes took to the situation at a glance. He is too seasoned a politician to take foolish risks, and he is going to desert Bendigo for North Sydney, one of the safest Nationalist seats in the Commonwealth. Someone who can better be spared, especially, will carry the Nationalist standard at Bendigo. History is thus repeating itself in 1922, after the split in the ranks

FIERY, ITCHING ECZEMA HEALED RIGHT UP BY APPLYING SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should have a little jar of Rowley's Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

During the afternoon, on behalf of the Scottish Daughters League, the guest of honor was presented with a beautiful leather vanity bag by the president, Mrs. Nicol, who expressed the society's deep regret that Mrs. McIntosh must soon sever her connection with them. MISS WINTERBURN WEDS A. D. ANDERSON

Popular Young Couple Are United in Marriage at St. John's Church—Many Guests

One of the prettiest and most interesting weddings of the fall season took place at St. John's Church last evening, when Winifred, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Winterburn, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Douglas Anderson, youngest son of the late Mr. J. A. Anderson and Mrs. Anderson.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very pretty in her graceful dress of crepe de Chine, with sleeves and panel of radium lace, the drapery caught at the side with a pearl ornament. Her long veil of embroidered silk net formed the train, and was held in place by a bandeau of silver ribbon and white violets. Her only ornament was a diamond and pearl bar pin, the gift of the groom, and she carried a beautiful bouquet of lilies and baby roses.

The bridesmaid was Miss Maple Winterburn, sister of the bride, who looked charming in a frock of mauve Georgette with girle of flowers. Her hair was becomingly arranged with a pretty floral ornament and she carried a sheaf of large yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. Vincent McKenna supported the groom, and the ushers were Mr. George Paulin and Mr. Jack Clay.

Mrs. Winterburn wore a handsome gown of purple crepe de Chine and velvet, with a black mohair hat trimmed with French flowers.

The church was artistically decorated with autumn flowers and foliage by friends of the bride. The Rev. F. A. F. Chadwick conducted the ceremony, the service being fully choral, with Mr. G. J. Burnett presiding at the organ. During the signing of the register, Miss Doris Pullen sang a solo, "Devotion."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where many guests gathered to extend their good wishes to the newly-wedded couple. Many beautiful gifts testified to the popularity of both the bride and groom.

The groom is a native son of Victoria and has been a member of the Provincial survey staff for the past ten years. Early in the war he served overseas in the 1st Canadian Divisional Artillery, receiving the Military Medal for services at Pouchendaele in 1917. Later he served in the Royal Air Force and was granted a commission near the close of the war. Since his return from overseas he has been closely identified with sport, particularly rugger, in which sport he has represented Victoria on a number of occasions. As a charter member and director of the Gyro Club here he has taken a keen interest in community service work.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on the midnight boat for a short visit to the mainland, the bride traveling in a dress of navy blue Canton crepe, a cream and blue tulle, with a blue and white squirrel, and a black feather toque. Upon their return to the city Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will take up their residence at the Alandale Apartments, Linden Avenue.

JUDGE SCORES VERDICT ACQUITTING AUTOIST

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—Mr. Justice Lannox in the jury's verdict last night severely scored the verdict acquitting James Blake, charged with manslaughter arising out of the death of 11-year-old Fred Verden, who was struck by a motor car driven by Blake.

Mr. Justice Lannox said he was unable to see how such a verdict was reached. He declared that in recent years jury verdicts showed a great change. Unsettled conditions following the war, influx of foreigners and a vast amount of propaganda being set forth by this class of the community might account for the change.

Soak the Dirt out.

THERE is such a simple easy way of washing rompers, school gingham, play clothes, etc., that you won't mind how many there are—thanks to Rinso.

First, make the wonderful Rinso liquid. Take half a packet of Rinso, thoroughly dissolve it in cool water, and add two quarts of boiling water. Then lay your clothes to soak in the tub of cool or lukewarm water. After one, two or three hours or in the morning give them a thorough rinsing and the dirt just runs away. No need to rub on the wash board so that holes come and colour goes.

Rinso is a wonderful product, scientifically made to wash clothes by soaking—different from soaps, chips and washing powders, and used differently.

Do not put Rinso into the tub from the package, but make the Rinso liquid first.

IF YOU USE A WASHING MACHINE Follow directions as above. After soaking the clothes wring them into machine, add enough fresh Rinso liquid, operate and rinse, and you will have the sweetest, cleanest clothes you ever saw.

INFORMATION BARRED

Applications to Police Department for Time Will Be Received With Stoney Refusal

Hereafter, when any individual lacks a timepiece and desires to ascertain the time of day, he or she need not risk up the police station. The order has gone forth that such queries directed to police headquarters shall not be answered.

Chief Fry, in explaining the order he has just promulgated, stated yesterday that apparently two-thirds of the population of the city are without timepieces and think the police station is the proper place to seek information of the passage of the hours. The police office telephones are kept constantly busy replying to such queries and serious interruption with the conduct of police business has thus been experienced. So hereafter no requests for such information will be complied with.

CRAFTS DISPLAY VERY INTERESTING

MANY EXHIBITS AT BELMONT HOUSE ADMIRER

Display Closed at 10 o'clock last night—A crowd has been gratifying

Yesterday was the final day of the thirteenth annual exhibition of the Island Arts and Crafts Society, and many people who benefited by the Wednesday half-holiday seized this last opportunity to visit this most interesting display of pictures and handicrafts.

Crafts Display
Even the materialist who begrudges the time which the artist gives to the creation of beautiful things will be forced to concede that art may take utilitarian forms after seeing some of the beautiful crafts. Mrs. Dennis Harris and the Twilite Cottage Industries had on display so many richly designed housewares, taking the form of tweeds and scarves, fancy sashes, hat-bags, handbags with picture-quilted original decorations, iron-holders, which are real ornaments, rug and rag-mats, that the visitor might have spent hours inspecting the articles and hearing the romance of their manufacture. Mrs. Harris' display included some stoles of rabbit fur, furniture, scarves and woven hats.

Mrs. Harris, who is also an ardent advocate of the preservation and revival of the old crafts, had some beautiful native dshes, made from the horn of the wild sheep and lined with copper. Spoons and bowls which would be covered by any collector were made by the West Coast Indians more than one hundred years ago, and anyone seeing the exquisite character of the work which the natives are doing before the coming of the white man may well lament that civilization has brought about the fall of the red man's art.

Still more methods of using British Columbia wool have been found. Mrs. Hind, of Queen's Avenue, having made up a quilted jacket filled with soft fleece from Island sheep. Handspun wools worked up into smart little sports hats, bolts of home-spun, gauzy Shetland shawls, all made from local wool; beautiful jumpers with caps and bags to match, shawls, and colorings, some quite barbaric, but surpassing the latest vogue models, were in Mrs. Harris' display. Mrs. Hunter had knitted a baby's pram cover from this wool. Mrs. Harris showed some smart cap-and-scarf sets. Mrs. Jones exhibited some very smart little hats.

The weaver's art was still further shown in the display of table scarves manufactured by W. G. York, under the auspices of the Red Cross shops. This weaving industry should be encouraged, one of the advantages of having the looms working locally being that special designs may be executed to order of the customer, thus meeting his particular needs. Mr. York's work is even and the designs good.

Mrs. Thorpe Double had some good rugs woven from wool spun by Mrs. Dennis Harris. This exhibitor is an expert, and a sampler in her collection showed the variety of weaving designs which she can teach.

Red Cross Shops
In the collection from the Red Cross Workshops were some excellent examples of basketwork of such sound workmanship and serviceable quality that it is to be wondered that the shops are not run off their feet with orders. A thermos flask holder with stout strap and made so that the basketwork will be a real protection to the thermos, suggested a useful Christmas present. There were workbenches, baby rattles of basketry, card trays, shopping baskets, cat-baskets, flower pot covers, etc., all happy suggestions.

Mrs. Althouse exhibited a fine lace tea-cloth designed and executed by her for the 1912 exhibition at South Crofton, where the article took a prize. Mrs. P. T. Johnston showed a baby's counterpane with fascinating stitched-in pictures of dogs, elephants, ducks, pigs and donkeys. A centerpiece with embroidered border was shown by Mr. Sumner.

Decorations
Very artistic things were on the table reserved for the work of the Decorative Studios. Among the several exquisite lamp shades was one carrying out a Copeland Spode design, suggesting the beauty of pattern that might be preserved in the furnishing of a dining-room. Bookends and candle-holders, which are as practical and useful as they are ornamental, have appealed to many of the visitors. Among the purely ornamental articles shown was a basket of fruit, apples, grapes and oranges, bearing such a resemblance to the real thing that nearly all who saw them were deceived. All the work on this table was done by Miss Sweeney and Miss Killo.

Miss M. Brande's hand-painted china occupied a big case. W. M. Carmichael had a collection of beautiful silverware, gems mounted as earrings, lockets and rings; silver mustard pots, napkins, rings, etc., were a part of this very delicately wrought display. Miss R. E. Rogers is expert in pen-painting, as her work on silk and velvet showed. Mrs. P. T. Johnston exhibited some hand-made woolly toys which are well-cut and strongly stitched.

Beautiful needlework was remarked in Mrs. R. H. McKicking's lampshade, an effective exhibit. Jean Donald's posters were very decorative, particularly the one of a lady with distaff, the line-drawing of which is very free. Dorothy Saphin entered a delicate bit of sampler embroidery. A. H. Milne demonstrated the beauties of polished woods and bark in a picture of other objects. Miss Donough achieved a tapestry effect in her painting on silk. Mrs. Martin showed much skill in her treatment of hammered copper, an enameled mirror frame being one of the really beautiful things in this section of the room. Her raffia boxes and beautifully finished leather bags demonstrated a high grade of craftsmanship. Mr. W. Lloyd Morgan had some decorative work; Mrs. Shaw's crocheted bags and little enameled and semi-precious baubles were most attractive. Boyd McGill exhibited some painted Christmas calendars. In Mrs. Ethel McKicking's Boys' collection of decorated china were some very choice plaques. Miss Crease's "Mother Goose" window wedges would make pretty gifts. Miss Harris had a number of very pretty waterproof tablecloths for the children's nursery, painted with "Mother Goose" subjects. Probably the first bit of carved marble ever shown at one of these exhibitions was E. A. Harris' bas-relief, a fine bit of work. J. G. Morris displayed hand-made rugs, an advantage of which is that they are reversible.

NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY IN SESSION

Interesting Lecture on Tides Given by Mr. Halkett at Regular Monthly Meeting

The engaging question of "What makes the tides and how is it done?" was answered very fully at the last meeting of the Natural History Society by Mr. A. Halkett, of the Dominion Public Works Department, who has made a careful study of this subject.

The speaker explained by means of a chart the effects of the sun's attraction drawing particles of the earth against the earth's own gravity. The particles, when pulled, exerted enough cohesion to remain practically unmoved while those of the waters are easily moved. A large map of the world, showing in silhouette the positions of the various tides, beginning in the southern belt of the oceans where the tides are created.

Following up the three oceans on the map the speaker explained the various irregularities in the tides when they reached the coastline, and mentioned the meeting of the waters round Vancouver Island. And the peculiar position at Balboa, Panama, where, although the tide advances, the water is actually later than points hundreds of miles further north; this being because of a backwater created by the coast of Mexico.

At the request of Mr. Halkett, Mr. Napier Denison gave some further notes on the additional undulations set up in the oceans and on the coast, both in the tides themselves and from outside causes, such as variations in the barometer and more or less regular seismic forces. An interesting feature is a certain oscillation of the water created by the barometric changes preceding a storm; in the case of Victoria this amounts to a north and south rise and fall in two to three minutes. Besides the paper of the evening numerous specimens were shown and questions discussed among the members. It is pleasing to note what an interest is being taken in these discussions indicating extended usefulness of the society.

A piece of bark from a wharf pile was exhibited by Mr. Halkett, which has the appearance of being one of the hard woods of Australia or New Zealand.

Branches of laurel from "Roccella" carrying berries of a size comparable with large black cherries gave evidence of a good fruiting season of this plant.

Mr. Downes, answering a question asked at the previous meeting as to whether a continent joined the Americas with the Australian islands, put before the meeting the most advanced theories he could find to prove by the insect flora and fauna life of South America, New Zealand and Australia that these must have existed continuously between these land areas now, and therefore there must have been land connections. Some of the insects are believed to have come all down the height of land from North America.

Mr. Penberton referred to a statement published in the American Forestry for August, 1922, which claimed that the potato was a fungus growth upon the root of the plant. He wrote to the editor and drew his attention to the fact that he considered a croneous statement, and received answer that Dr. Schuffeldt, the author of the article in question, had been misled by a statement of his authorities. Mr. Penberton has referred to all botanical works available here, and has not found any confirmation of the statement.

The Agricultural Department of British Columbia, states that the tuber is simply the terminal portion of the underground stem swollen with reserve food in the form of starch. In "Potatoes for Secondary Schools" tubers are called kinds of storage organs. Short and much thickened or swollen parts of roots or stems.

Mr. Kelly read a paragraph in the Chamber of Commerce Journal giving particulars about the conifer seeds planted at the Victoria New Westminster plant for this purpose by the Forestry Department, Ottawa. About 7,000 seeds had been planted with a view to autumn and as the seeds averaged about two hundred thousand kernels to the pound it is obvious that if all these seeds germinated it would represent a big forest.

The largest purchaser of the seeds was the Forestry Commission of Great Britain, which took over 7,000 pounds. Douglas fir and Sitka spruce are especially well in Great Britain.

Shipments have also been made to other provinces of the Dominion, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, as well as associations in the United States, Belgium, France, Sweden, Norway, Finland and Peru.

This extraction of seed is a benefit to both the Empire and the Dominion. Mr. Anderson drew the society's attention to the proposed formation of a new Historical Society and reminded the members that the Natural History Society had for one of its objects as stated in the constitution, the study of historical matters connected with the Province.

RE-ECHO GAINS HANDICAP EVENT

Sir Ernest Paget's Colt Has Lead of Length and Half in Cambridgehire Stakes—Thirty-Four Starters

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Cambridgehire Stakes, one of the principal autumn handicaps, and the feature of the second day of the Newmarket-Houghton meet, was today decided by the long list of races that have furnished upsets to racing form this season.

Sir Ernest Paget's three-year-old colt, Re-echo, quoted at 25 to 1 against, won the mile and a furlong sprint by a length and a half. Pointed Arrow, a three-year-old colt by Spearmint-White Lie, the 7 to 1 favorite owned by Major H. Kayser, finished second, a length ahead of J. A. Rothchild's four-year-old filly Hasty Match, by Son-in-Law-Tell.

There were 34 starters.

Re-echo, winner of today's feature, is a brown colt by Nell Gove-Corriera. As a two-year-old, Re-echo won two of his four starts, but during the present season, following his failure in the Derby, when he finished fifth, he has been beaten twice, finishing third in the Ascot Derby, and in the same position in the Breeders' Foal Stakes at Reading.

Re-echo, who was ridden today by Whalley, carried 107 pounds, or four pounds more than Poisoned Arrow, and 13 pounds more than Hasty Match.

HUDSON'S BAYS TASTE DEFEAT

Garrison Eleven Climbs Into Second Place in League—Soldiers Completely Outplay Their Opponents

The Garrison soccer team sprang a surprise yesterday afternoon, when, in a football engagement played in a heavy downpour of rain, they took the Hudson's Bays into camp in the rhythm of two goals to nil. The soldiers played far the best game and were entitled to the victory. In fact, they were outclassed by the Bays that it would not have been surprising if they had garnered several more tallies than they succeeded in obtaining.

A fair number of supporters of each team braved the inclement weather and turned out at the Royal Athletic Park to see how well the rival squads could do on the wet grounds. There was considerable interest in the match, especially as it meant so much to the Bays whether they won or lost the matinee entertainment. The Bays were on even footing with Wellers, but by losing yesterday's game they dropped back into second place, for which position they are now tied with the Garrison men, while Wellers are leading the league.

The soldiers started into the game with several very well executed rushes, which almost won them a place in the scoring column. In fact, during the opening ten minutes of the battle, the Garrison players were on the offensive practically the whole time, the play being almost continuously in the Bays' territory. When the Hudson's Bays did come to life they made several attempts to beat the soldiers' goal, but they were without avail, mainly because their shot were wild and did not go near the goal.

Coulters Scores First

By continual hard playing and aggressiveness, the Garrison succeeded in registering the first score in the game when the match was about twenty minutes old. The goal was scored by the soldiers' forwards, got the ball away and tested Shrimpton with a pretty shot. The Bays' goalkeeper, however, failed to stem the attack, and Joy was brought to the heart of the winning aggregation and its supporters.

Upon resumption of play after the interval, the soldiers continued to press their opponents hard and severely. But the Garrison forwards misdirected their kicks, with the result that it was quite awhile later before they again placed the ball past Shrimpton. The soldiers should have had several goals during this time, but wild shooting prevented them from scoring.

About twenty minutes after the kick-off, the Hudson's Bays finally got into the game and played in the fine style which has previously characterized their efforts on the football field. They took the ball down into the soldiers' ground, but they seemed unable to put the finishing touch that would have given them entry into the scoring division. Their men played hard and tried to tally, but without result.

The second goal of the afternoon was registered about ten minutes before the end. It was an easy score, and one which Shrimpton did not stop. Soldiers secured the ball in front of the Hudson's Bays goal and with unusual suddenness shot the ball towards the Bays' goal, who apparently was sleeping the kick and did not exert himself to prevent the tally. The ball was not travelling with rapidity, and the shot was certainly most unexpected. This was the final goal, neither team being able to obtain further scores in the remaining portion of the game, during which play was more even than at any part of the match.

Garrison Had Speed

The condition of the ground did not help players on either side very much, as they were from time to time slipping on the grassy portions of the field and missing good chance to score or receive passes from their teammates. The Garrison boys uncopied quite a lot of speed and were standing the pace better than their opponents. The soldiers' defence played a sterling game, while their forwards did good work.

Shrimpton, who headed the Bays' cage, was in fine fettle, and stopped a number of difficult shots with comparative ease. The Bays' forwards did not come up to form, and the team did not put up nearly as good an exhibition as it did when they opposed Wellers' soccer eleven a week ago.

Percy C. Payne officiated as referee.

The teams took the field as follows:

Hudson's Bays—Shrimpton; J. Allen and Smith; Dunn, Waide and Sewell; Alcott, Stewart, Turner, Crawford and Richardson.

Garrison—Waggett; Waggett and Armstrong; Davies, Spiers and Mitchell; Cummins, Bias, Coulter, Ward and Hunsell.

NANAIMO CELTICS TRIM LADYSMITH

The undefeated Celtics, of Nanaimo, continued their victorious career by defeating the Ladysmith second division team on the Agricultural Grounds, Sunday afternoon, by a score of 3 to 1.

The game, although very interesting, was not of the best. In the first two minutes the score stood one all, the Ladysmith tally being made by Watson. Ladysmith had considerably the best of the play, but during a squabble at the goal's mouth, Anderson kicked the ball clear, but it was thought that it was in the goal, which made the score 2-1.

The last goal was a fast, low one, shot at close range, and the Ladysmith goalie failed to clear, which made Nanaimo two better than Ladysmith. Although forcing the visitors until the final whistle, the odds were too great, and Ladysmith met their second defeat this season.

BABE RUTH NOW
ON THE CHUTE

Big Bambino Proved Great Disappointment in the World's Series—Popularity of Home Run King Has Waned

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The greatest disappointment of the world's series was Babe Ruth, largely because so much was expected of him. He did his best, and hit just three balls hard in the entire series. One went for a double, one for a single, and the other was turned into a put-out by Bill Cunningham after a sensational catch. The Babe's collapse was the biggest crash since Joe Willard kissed the canvas seven times in the first round at Toledo under the battering bangs of Jack Dempsey.

Babe's contract has two years to run, but there are clauses in it which the Babe has consistently made operative to the point where a cause for breaking them legally would be readily obtained. If he is no longer of value to the club—and there are good judges of baseball who say that he is through, that the old day is gone the way of the dodo—he can be released without either legal or moral hold upon the Yankees owners.

He has been receiving $75,000 a year because he was supposed to be the greatest hitter in organized baseball. In the world series he went into history as he proved himself one of the worst.

Babe on Greased Chute
In all probability the Babe will get another chance during the Spring training season next year. If he were a Ty Cobb, likely to take his downfall to heart and to work all winter to get himself into shape, there would be hope for him. But it looks bad now. He is already on the chute and some one is greasing the slide. Only a miracle can save him—and that miracle must be supplied by the Babe himself.

There are other matters that will be considered by the Yankee chiefs before next year rolls around. Bob Meusel will be one of them. His downfall was the greatest in the series. True, he hit well. But he was lazy, indolent and indifferent to the success of the club. With any manager other than Huggins he would have been fined a half dozen times during the series if he had not been benched.

Meusel's exhibition of dumbness was nothing short of the worst of its kind that veteran baseball men remember. Still, it was in keeping with the general Yankee atmosphere. The unfortunate sin, from the viewpoint of Yank owners, is that there was so little evidence that the players really wanted to win. They tossed games away with absolute abandon.

In fact, if one did not have absolute confidence in the game, one could find in the series that ended a couple of weeks ago more cause for suspicion than was provided by the sell-out series of 1919.

Ruth's Fall Amazing

A veteran baseball man says: "Babe Ruth entered the series in excellent physical condition for a player of his age. He was shown up by the Giants' pitchers in a way that amazed the fans. Leader McGraw had Ruth's number last year, but Yankee partisans refused to believe it. From the outset of this year's series, Ruth's weakness was evident. McGraw's smart box-men fooled him with change of pace. They kept the balls low and at the same time were not afraid to pitch to him.

"Ruth went up to the plate twenty-one times. He was passed unintentionally twice, was picked by a pitched ball once, made a single, a two-bagger and a sacrifice, was retired seven times on infield grounders, forced one man at second, fouled out twice, bled out twice and fanned three times.

"In seventeen times at bat, the former home-run king made two safe drives, which yielded a batting average of .118 for the series. I maintained some time ago that Ruth's worldwide reputation as a slugger extraordinary had been built up at the expense of pitchers in the American League who lacked either skill or brains. So, with McGraw directing matters from the Giants' bench, the fading Bambino proved conclusively during the late engagement that he had been tremendously overrated."

Scribe Calls It Tragedy

Robert F. Kelly, a baseball expert, says: "Somehow there was a note of tragedy about the pitiful attempts of Babe Ruth to connect for a base hit. It was quite a sight to see the once proud slugger, with short bat and twisting feet, try to even connect for a single. Once he prided himself on the sweep of his swing, staking everything on a home run, satisfied to lose everything when he missed. Playing for high stakes or for none. It was all right for he won often enough to cover up his losses.

"Everywhere today where baseball people gather to talk of the game the question is handed back and forth. 'Is he through?' Certainly there are grounds for such a speculation. In the entire lineup of the Yankee team there was no weaker spot than that filled by Ruth. He was the weakest hitter in the Yankee lineup. Last fall he was injured and counted out. Nothing could be anticipated for him. He was a liability about the way in which the Giants' pitchers stopped him in that series. It was laid to his injury. This year, before the series started, his host of supporters were confident that his burly figure would be one of the most prominent in the game.

Was at Their Mercy

"But Ruth failed. The Giant pitchers had him entirely at their mercy from start to finish. Hence the question, 'Is he through?' may well be asked. And the answer lies entirely with the big fellow himself. The Giants gained their best results with a combination of slow balls and fast curves that kept the ball in near the handle of his bat. Jack Scott made him hit it three times on the handle of his bat for three puny little taps toward the first base side of the diamond. Now the question is, will the American League pitchers next year also find a weakness in the hitherto impregnable armor of the big fellow?

"Of all the Yankees, Ruth is facing the gravest problem. They have lost, but tomorrow is another day. Next year is another year. For Ruth there is the necessity of proving that next year is not his last year. He is a good baseball player, but he is not a star. That is, he is in a star with his slugging ability taken away from him. For two years he was one of the most unique figures the game had ever seen. He enjoyed publicity such as no other American had ever gained. His name was known from one end of the country to the other. This season some of his prestige was dimmed. He ran into all sorts of troubles and for the first time the followers of the game began to wonder of their idol was the big, good-natured boy that they thought him. The world's series came and Ruth failed miserably. Now the burden of proof is on himself.

The Last Chapter

"It may be that Ruth will write next season the closing chapter of a story that is at once brilliant and tragic. It may be that the boy who came from the orphan academy in Baltimore and rose to the post of one of the most highly paid and highly regarded men in the country has burned himself out in a brief flash of fame. For several years now Ruth has been followed by a crowd wherever he went. People have pressed forward to shake his hand. He has always had money to spend for whatever he wanted. Over night, it seemed, the world opened up for him and there was nothing but sunshine. The time when he was merely one of a group of boys, marching from classroom to dining hall and back again seemed so far away that it almost seemed that it had never happened.

"But the boom and catcalls that came from the stands at times this season started to open his eyes. It is probable now that he realizes that the great and famous public can forget even more quickly than it remembers. It can even forget the great Ruth, home run hitter. If this is the case, the boy who once wanted to fight without losing his form may come back. If it tends merely to make him over-anxious and make him lose the synchronization that gave him his power, then he will indeed present a tragic spectacle next year."

RACE MEET WILL FOLLOW LATONIA

Pari-Mutuel System of Betting Will Be in Force—Thoroughbred Run Dead Heat in Kentucky

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 25.—A running race meeting has been authorized by the Kentucky Racing Commission at the new Downs Park course near this city, to be held November 8 to 18, following the close of the meeting now in progress at Latonia, Ky. The track is a mile and an eighth in length. The pari-mutuel system of betting will be in force.

Run Off a Dead Heat

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 25.—The running off of a dead heat, an unusual occurrence in the history of the racing event in today's racing here, after judges had decided that Sway and Fanteche had finished even, with Paris (third). When a dead heat is run either owner has the privilege of demanding a run-off, according to the Kentucky racing rules, but in the case of the owners have divided the purse.

However, Judge Alie W. Young, owner of Fanteche, believed his horse the better, and after a twenty-minute cool-off was given the horses they appeared on the track ready for a second feature. Sway went into the lead and held it for a mile, but the younger animal moved up, passed Sway and won by three lengths.

This was the first run-off on a Kentucky track since 1909.

Last Year's Champions Defeat Fitz's Eleven in Wednesday Soccer Game—Winning Goal Scored in Last Minute

Yesterday's Results

The Standing
P. W. L. D. Pts
Weiler's 3 2 0 1 5
Garrison 4 1 2 1 3
Hudson's Bay 1 1 1 3 3
Fitz's 3 0 2 1 1

Two points were deducted from the Hudson's Bays for playing an ineligible player.

Weiler's soccer eleven, champions of the Wednesday League last season, yesterday afternoon gained two more points in their journey towards the league championship by defeating Fitz's team at Beacon Hill Park by the score of 2 goals to 1. It was not until within one minute of the sounding of the final whistle that the Weiler boys were able to register the deciding tally which gave them the encounter. By their victory yesterday Weiler's are now occupying the pre-eminent berth in the league, being two points ahead of the Garrison and Hudson's Bays, who are tied for the second position.

The game started with a rush, and almost immediately Baker, in goal for Weiler, was tested to no effect, as he seemed quite capable of handling all that came his way. From then on the play went from one end of the field to the other, with both sides having little or nothing to do. When the game had been in progress for about twenty minutes the eventual winners seemed to find themselves quite at home, and only fine defensive work on the part of Fitz's goalie and books saved their team from an early defeat.

This attack on Fitz's goal proved successful, and after a goal had been taken and Jasper had been kept busy saving shots from close quarters, Weiler's were finally rewarded with a goal, which was the first of the game. With the day Weiler forwards right in the mouth of their goal, and the opposing team fighting hard to clear, one of Fitz's goals, in an endeavor to clear the ball, headed it into his own goal, thereby putting Weiler's on top.

Being on the bottom end of the score did not in any way dishearten Weiler's, and for quite a time the opposing defense was kept busy in staying off the attack of the opposing team, which they managed to do quite successfully, and when the whistle blew, the score stood 1-0 in favor of Weiler's.

With the rest period over, both teams came back with renewed energy, and for the first ten minutes of this half Fitz's goalie was kept quite busy casting aside the shots of the Weiler forwards. With the second half well over, Fitz's goalie broke into the score column, after a very heavy attack on their opponent's goal. Robbins, on a pass, kicked the ball into the net when well on the opposing goal, and the goalie had no chance to save. With the score tied both teams fought like Trojans in an endeavor to overtake their opponents, and it was now that both goalies were given quite a warm time in staying off the attack of the opposing forwards. Jasper, in particular, being tested with some real hot shots, which he cast aside in fine style.

With about ten minutes to go, Weiler missed a golden opportunity to put their team one up when they had an open goal, Jasper being called out to save, and before he got back into his goal the opposing centre forward took a shot at the open goal, the shot glancing on the ground just in front of the goal and hitting the crossbar. Before any of the Weiler players could get their feet on the ball, Fitz's defence came to the rescue and sent the ball well up into the field of play.

Attack Weiler's Goal
Fitz's team then attacked their opponents' goal heavily, but their attempts lacked the necessary finish to land the ball into the net and give them the goal which would have won them the match. Baker, in goal for the winners, was kept quite busy during this attack on his goal, and he was given a very warm time by the style of a veteran.

With about one minute to go, and the likelihood of the score being a draw, Hall kicked the deciding tally past Jasper, which gave the Weiler eleven the victory. The team came back strong in an endeavor to tie the score, but this tally had proven fatal, and when the final whistle sounded Fitz's had to admit defeat and accept the result of the game.

For the losers, Gibson, at centre half, played a splendid game; also the two backs, but the forwards seemed to lack the necessary finish to make their efforts count. For the Weiler eleven, Hall, who scored the winning tally, was slated as the hero of the day, while Newman and Baker, backs, played good soccer. Leighton refereed.

The teams took the field as follows:
Weiler's—Baker; Newman and Baker; Feden, Hall and Hilton; Stewart, Fletcher, Hay, Hall and Hilton.
Fitz's—Jasper; Grimes and Grimes; Lynn, Gibson and Sharrock; Clarke, Robbins, Erskine, Anderson and Sharrock.

THIS SEA SERPENT IS NASTY FELLOW

DIRTIES FIRE, SWIMS IN SEA AND FLIES IN AIR

Monarch of His Kind Loose in Mediterranean—Armed Vessels Go Forth to Engage Him

After a long absence the sea serpent has appeared once more. According to reports received from Constantinople and Smyrna the elusive reptile is displaying itself in the placid waters of the Mediterranean, terrifying fishermen and crews of the feluccas and other small craft which ply along the shores of the Levant.

The most thrilling story was brought to New York recently by officers of the National Greek liner Constantine, who said that motor launches armed with one-pounder quick-firing guns were searching the Sea of Marmora for a winged marine monster which had been sighted circling Dog Island at a great speed for three or four days.

When it rose from the sea and flew over the city of Istanbul, it was reported to have made a booming sound like the German triplanes that flew over Paris during the war. The winged marine monster passed through the Dardanelles without causing a big wash along the shore has not yet been discovered.

Takes to the Air

Officers on the Constantinople said that the flying sea serpent was first reported off the ancient port of Chalcis in the Aegean Sea and no alarm was given to Athens to send a gunboat to search for the monster and destroy it. When the commander of the fort fired a gun in the direction indicated by the scared spongers the serpent rose to an altitude of about 5,000 feet and flew away toward the port of Smyrna, Asia Minor, where it was reported next day to have sunk two caducous laden with figs and pistachio nuts.

An Eye Witness

Zubee Effendi, a Turkish rug merchant who arrived from Smyrna on the liner, said that he saw the winged monster clearly and plainly as he was crossing the bay to his home on one of the islands. When the head rose from the surface of the water, he said, all the natives on board flung themselves on the deck and prayed, while the vessel rocked wildly and the sea was covered with white foam as if it was being violently agitated underneath.

The head of the nautilus reptile was fully ten feet across, with two enormous reddish green eyes butting out on either bow like a ship's searchlight, while the body was a pale yellow as if it were easily weighed at each. It beam across the middle of the bay, which rose high out of the water, Zubee Effendi continued, was fifteen feet, and the length over all was fully fifty feet.

Warm Things Up

When the sea serpent turned its head toward the boat the heat on the Turkish rug merchant's face was unbearable, said the Turkish rug merchant. The heat of his beard was shivering up. Finally the monster dived, flung its huge tail into the air with a splash that nearly sent the small schooner over on its beam ends, and then disappeared from view.

Within a few days the flying sea serpent, Zubee Effendi said, was reported off the mouth of the Nile in Egypt, and off the island of Milene, where it was stated to have rammed and sunk a felucca laden with currants, because one of the crew struck the reptile in the eye with a pomegranate. Spongers divers and pearl fishers in the Aegean Sea are reported to be taking a rest until the sea serpent has been destroyed.

NEW FERRY READY BY EARLY SPRING

TENDERS FOR CONSTRUCTION ORDERED YESTERDAY

Open at Both Ends So That Motorists Can Sit in Their Cars and View Scenery

SEATTLE, Oct. 25.—The new Anacortes-Victoria ferry, on which bids were requested today by Harry Crosby, president of the ferry company, will be ready for service by April 1. It will be open at both ends for a distance of about 30 feet, so that motorists may sit in their cars and view the scenery. The vessel will make two round trips a day between Anacortes and Sidney.

The vessel will be of the finest of her type on the Pacific Coast, just prepared, call for a carrier 148 feet long, 34 feet beam and 9 feet depth. The vessel will be equipped with a 500 horsepower diesel engine capable of driving her at a speed of twelve knots. She will be able to make the run from Anacortes to Sidney in three hours. There will be space for thirty-four automobiles. Features of the new vessel include a lunchroom, smoking room, women's rest room and a station where automobiles may be supplied with gas while being transported to or from Vancouver Island.

Camilla Gilbert Expected Any Day From Orient—Should Have Been Here Yesterday

The SS. Camilla Gilbert is expected to reach Victoria today, or any day now, by King Brothers, agents for the vessel. The ship left Japan on October 7, and should have been here yesterday, but has apparently been kept at sea longer than anticipated owing to weather conditions. She is coming here for orders. The Thorndyke-Trenholme Company, of Seattle, are operators of the vessel, and the port captain of the concern is coming here to meet the ship. It is believed she will go on berth at British Columbia wharf to load a full cargo of lumber for the Atlantic.

SHIPBUILDERS HAVE BAD YEAR EVERYWHERE

LONDON, Oct. 24.—World-wide depression in the shipbuilding industry has in no wise been relieved during the last year, states Lloyd's annual report, which points to continued stagnation in internal trade. The report mentions that the tonnage now afloat exceeds the pre-war mercantile tonnage by some 15,000,000 tons. The actual tonnage held in Lloyd's classification in June last exceeded 27,000,000 tons, being the highest ever recorded, and in addition thereto is added 294 vessels of 2,500,000 tons about to be included in the register, making the total 10,350 vessels totalling 28,750,000 tons afloat.

Approximately half the tonnage classified by Lloyd's is British. The new tonnage amounts to 2,500,000, which is 22 per cent below the pre-war figure.

An interesting sidelight is the progressive demand for oil-burners and oil carriers. The former constituted 55 per cent of the year's new tonnage, and the latter now totals 5,000,000 tons, compared with 1,500,000 tons in 1914. Internal combustion engine vessels continue to gain ground. There were 1,420 motor vessels—1,500,000 tons—in July, compared with 297 vessels totalling 250,000 tons in July, 1914.

FLAG IS POWERLESS BUT FLAGON IS NOT

BRIGHT YOUNG MEN OUTWIT DAUGHTERLY RULING

Would Have Vessel Outside Port to Receive Liquor Before Entering Three-Mile Limit

Today there is only one topic of discussion in shipping circles and that is Attorney-General's ruling prohibiting liquor on board American ships and on foreign vessels in American waters. If it be true that trade follows the flag, it does not look as though American ships are going to be hotly pursued, says The Nautical Gazette, of New York.

We must, however, dissent from the prevailing opinion that foreign ships will call at Canadian ports to take on liquor for their passengers, as we feel to see how this is going to produce the result. If an American is obliged to make a transatlantic voyage on a foreign ship in order to get liquor, and he has to go to Canada to get the alcohol, the method for crossing the Atlantic will be removed. He might just as well stay in Canada, for he can get all he wants there, so what will be the use of going any further? The foreign ship will, therefore, be deprived of his patronage. But then we hate to think that Americans travel overseas for the sole purpose of indulging in a period of drunkenness and debauchery such as the Attorney-General's ruling presupposes.

A New Industry

Undoubtedly there will be many suggestions made to circumvent the law, and there will be just as many persons who will seek to reap financial profit from rendering such services as these suggestions may entail. The activities of these enterprising parties have already been made manifest. Bright and early on Saturday morning, right on the heels of the announcement of the dauntless ruling, a dapper young man made the rounds of foreign steamship offices in New York and announced himself in each office as being the representative of a leading American "manufacturing" concern which had a very interesting proposition to make. The proposition was that his concern would undertake to have vessels waiting outside the three-mile limit to receive the stock of wines and liquors from incoming foreign ships so that they might enter American waters "bonafide," and deliver the stock to the vessel after she had passed the three-mile limit on her outward voyage. The proposition was not very warmly received, as the young man could not explain how the transfer of liquor would be effected in rough weather. But then this was only on Saturday morning. After more study has been given to the problem little obstacles like this will be easily overcome.

What of the Embassies?

Somewhat we cannot get the Attorney-General's line of reasoning clear in our minds. The premise is that an American ship in a foreign port is still American territory. Foreign embassies in the United States are also regarded as foreign territory so far as the application of the Volstead Act is concerned, and as such are permitted to have liquor. If this exemption is made in the case of foreign consulates, why not in the case of foreign ships?

Similarly, if an American ship in a foreign port is American territory, then American embassies in foreign countries ought to be American territory for the purposes of the Volstead Act. But if our embassies are permitted to have liquor, why are not our ships accorded the same privilege, since both are American territory?

FUR SEAL SEASON POOR FOR INDIANS

NO HARVEST AT ALL AMONG WEST COAST TRIBES

Prices Low and Seal Source and Far Out at Sea—2,000 Pelts Last Year, One or Two This

Charlie Joe, of Toke, was in the city yesterday with disappointing tales of the movement of seals off the West Coast. The herds have been traveling far out at sea, and with the poor prices prevailing the Indians, to whom alone nowadays is allowed the right to seal, were under no great temptation to hunt for them. Last summer, when the market was good, thousands of the animals swarmed themselves daily on the rocks along the West Coast and the old-time hunters prevailed upon men since their youth, made hauls rich enough to tide them over several winters.

The seals make their way north in the spring, and the hunting season begins. The Indians, although the market has been such fine weather, however, they have been keeping far out from shore. Only a few seals have been seen by Charlie Joe during the past few weeks of the southern movement, and this trio was the only one seen. The same condition is prevalent in the spring, and only one pelt came down from the West Coast to pass customs inspection and be sold for shipment. The Indians, although the only ones permitted to seal, are not given unrestricted privileges. They cannot use rifles, but must do all their killing with spears or clubs. Canoes, logs and any aboriginal method of getting about the water may be taken in the attack, but power boats are banned. Despite these drawbacks to slaughter, the Indians last summer succeeded in bagging close to 2,000 seals, and sold the skins for about $22 each.

No Bootlegger Guns

"But price he so bad, Indians not catching seal this year," said Charlie Joe. Reports that the Indians have been using spear-throwing rifles, or bootlegger guns as they are called on the West Coast, were denied by Charlie Joe. "We spit our skulls with spear at ninety feet, good enough."

Alaska's fur seal harvest, garnered by the United States Government on the Pribilof and shared by Russia, Japan and Canada, as stipulated by the international sealing agreement of a dozen years ago, is better this year than last.

Thirty thousand seals were killed since last June by native employees by the government on the Pribilof. This exceeds the operations last year, when 26,000 skins were taken.

Practically all the 1921 harvest is still held in reserve in St. Louis for headquarters owing to low prices, but most of these, including the 30,000 pelt taken this season, are expected to be sold immediately because of a high demand.

The steamer Brookland, operated by the Crosby Marine Corporation, of Seattle, will bring the 30,000 seal-skins to Seattle next month, and from there they will be shipped to St. Louis.

Columbia Offering Popular Star in a Gripping Drama and Great Scenic Beauty

Announcement is made by the Columbia Theatre that the popular Dustin Farnum, now a Fox star, is to open at that house today in his latest photoplay, "Strange Idols." The play, written by Jules Furthman, concerns the romance of a wealthy lumberman of the Northwest and a famous dancer in a Broadway cabaret. It is the story of an unfortunate love match, with its heartburnings and ultimate reunion. The scenic effects include the white light activities of New York and the shadowed depths of the primitive forest in the Northwest.

Dorla Pawn, a very winsome actress, is Farnum's leading woman in this picture, which was directed by Bernard Durning. Dustin Farnum's great popularity should insure him a hearty welcome at the Columbia Theatre.

ETERNAL FLAME HAS CAPACITY AUDIENCES

Film Production of Balzac's Novel at the Royal Victoria Theatre Proves Popular

The brilliance of "The Eternal Flame" is leading numbers of patrons to the Royal Victoria where the pictorially beautiful film version of Balzac's Duchesse de Langeais is being produced this week.

Not only does the play boast a cast containing two of the most popular silver screen actors of the day, Norma Talmadge and Conway Tearle, but the wealth of detail, and the accurate portrayal of the luxurious atmosphere and surroundings of France's Second Restoration period are in themselves an interesting study, while the plot of the story does not allow of one picture which is not full of vivacity and dignified charm.

To readers of Balzac the film comes as a picturesque interpretation of the great writer's book, and if the ending is not quite as the writer stated no one who has seen the picture will bear malice to the screen producers, for the marvelous acting of the two principals makes the play a real life story, and as such should, in pictures, end with the hero and heroine living "happily forever afterwards."

Gossip, that malicious serpent, reared its ugly head as strongly in the days of the Second Restoration as it did in the days of Adam and Eve, and with far-reaching effect. This, and the flirtations of the Duchesse de Langeais form the groundwork for the theme of the story, and it is only after years of repentance on the part of the coquettish French beauty, that Eventually the tangled skein of life is happily smoothed.

Throughout the story the scenery is exceptionally magnificent. Not only the gowns worn by Norma Talmadge, but those of the entire assemblage at the large receptions are noteworthy. The film has an immense educational value also in illustrating the life and surroundings during the reign of Louis XVIII of France, following the Hundred Days in the Second Restoration.

"The Eternal Flame" will be shown at the Royal Victoria for the remainder of the week, and the capacity audiences which have attended the performances are in themselves a guarantee of its success. It is authentically stated that some "movie fans" have attended the show three times already.

DOMINION For "The Face in the Fog," a pictorialization of one of Jack Boyle's famous "Boston Blackie" stories, Cosmopolitan Productions engaged a notable cast of stage and screen celebrities. This remarkable Paramount picture will be shown at the Dominion Theatre today and the balance of the week.

Lionel Barrymore, whose creation of "The Copperhead" as well as numerous striking screen parts have marked him as an exceptional character actor, will be seen in the role of Blackie Dawson, the gentlemanly safecracker. Louis Wolheim, who leaped into fame with the first performance on Broadway of "The Merry Widow," was engaged for a contrasting type of the brutal criminal, while Lowell Sherman, star of "Lawful Larceny," plays the role of the polished Russian adventurer, Seena Owen, whose work in Cosmopolitan's "Sister" is well remembered, plays the leading feminine role, while Mary McLaren has a prominent part.

Other members of the cast are George Nash, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Macey Harlam and Tom Blake.

GREAT PLAY LIVES AGAIN IN FILM AT CAPITOL NEXT WEEK

All arrangements have been completed for the coming engagement of David W. Griffith's masterful motion picture elaboration of "Way Down East" at the Capitol Theatre. The presentation in this city will begin Oct. 30 and continue daily thereafter, matinee and evening, for a period of six days. Again, the case of "The Birth of a Nation," Griffith has turned to a success of the stage for his material. This time he has taken a play that has withstood the tests of time and has a score of years and enjoyed an unusual appeal. The success that has crowned his efforts proves that nothing dies for this master of the silent drama; no art is lost in the great play lives again in greater scope and grandeur through his touch and vivification.

When Lottie Blair Parker and Joseph Griffith brought forth this drama at a time before people were accustomed to think in or of the theatre it was referred to as a rural play; Griffith has utilized it to bring forth a picture of a man's soul and thus lay bare truth as urban as Broadway and as universal as the skies. In this picture, spectators are transformed from pastoral solitudes to the glitter of city life, thus furnishing a series of contrasts that enhance the dramatic values of the offering.

The delightful comedy scenes of simple country folk are retained and even amplified, while the finale brings forth the great snowstorm scenes ending with the stupendous crashing ice-berg, all of which are presented in a manner the public has come to expect in a Griffith production. The orchestral accompaniment is said to be the most pretentious yet attempted in connection with a photodrama presentation.

The management of the Capitol Theatre wishes to advise patrons that owing to the widespread appeal and value of this presentation, it is prudent that seats be secured in advance and as early as possible.

LECTURE ON FRENCH POET

Madame Sanderson-Mongin Gave Delightful Address on Coppee

Francis Coppee, the French poet, was the subject of the delightful lecture given by Mme. Sanderson-Mongin for the first of the 1922-23 season's "Conferences," held yesterday afternoon at Lady Barnard's residence, Sea Terrace, Esquimalt. A large attendance of members enjoyed the delightful review of the Frenchman's writings, which illustrated with such delicacy and pathos the tragedy and humor of everyday existence among "Les Humbles" and others.

Assisting Mme. Sanderson-Mongin with the expressively recited examples of Coppee's verse were Mme. Halley, Miss Margaret Hayward, Miss Mason and Miss Pearson, while Miss Dorothy Hicks sang very charmingly.

The members were entertained at tea after the conference. Mrs. T. B. Gore and Miss Mara presiding at the urns. Masses of gorgeously tinted Autumn foliage formed very effective decorations in all the reception rooms.

From Empire's Resources

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Sir Thomas Smartt, Minister of Agriculture in the South African Government, is an address to his constituents, a Reuter dispatch from Cape Town says, supported the view that not only the exhibits at the British Empire Exhibition, which is to be held in 1924, but with the fewest possible exceptions, the catering requirements of the exhibition should be drawn from the Empire's resources.

CROWDS ENJOY "WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES"

Comedy Opens Second Week With Capacity House—Mr. Hincks Appears for Mr. Petch

The amusing tale of "What Happened to Jones" at the Playhouse last week has apparently got about the city, if one is to judge from the cordial support offered the performance last night, the first of the second week's run. The house had few if any empty seats, and the gales of laughter that swept the audience were one continual disturbance.

Admirers of the talent of Mr. Ernie Petch missed his familiar figure and droll remarks, the popular star being off the cast this week owing to illness. His place as Anthony Goodly, the pompous Bishop of Ballarat, is taken by Mr. Reginald Hincks himself, who had last week no place in the personnel. Mr. Hincks' absence was then one of the few faults to find with the production. This defect is happily made good this week, although not without cost, in the absence of Mr. Petch. The comic possibilities of the Bishop's misfortunes are used to full advantage by Mr. Hincks, as local theatre goers, familiar with his acting, can well believe. No other changes were necessary in the cast by reason of Mr. Petch's absence.

The play is one of the best yet presented by the talented Playhouse aggregation. Last night's reception was a reflection of the successful performances of last week, and a promise of continued crowded houses the rest of this week. The adventures of Jones are full of extreme humor and complex situations, furnish ample scope for the clever company, and satisfy the audience with the maximum of bright comedy. It is being played nightly the rest of the week, with a matinee on Saturday, and should bring a big rush for seats.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEETS AT LANGFORD

Members of Victoria and Lake Hill Organizations Pay Fraternal Visit—Interesting Discussions

LANGFORD, Oct. 24.—Almost every member of the Women's Institute was present at Langford Hall this afternoon to welcome the ladies of the Victoria Institute, numbering twenty-four, and fifteen belonging to Lake Hill. The usual business meeting passed the first hour, which included correspondence from the Travelers' Aid, and excellent reports of the late conference by the two delegates, Mrs. P. Welch and Mrs. du Plessis. It was decided that an amusement committee be formed to arrange future entertainments to help the Institute's finances. Messrs. Beauchemin, J. C. Brown, Desville and Welch kindly consenting to act on this.

The November meeting will consist of a roll call, and each member answering her name will be expected to talk and if possible give a demonstration of some Christmas present.

Mrs. W. M. Brown, from the Metcalch Institute, and Miss Kelly, nurse, were heartily welcomed.

At 3 o'clock the visitors arrived, and a few words of welcome were given by the Langford president, Mrs. Radford, which were responded to by the Lake Hill president, Mrs. Mercer.

Mrs. W. D. Todd, secretary of the Victoria Institute, spoke of their rooms in the Surrey Block, and how pleased they were to welcome anyone from the rural districts there.

The musical programme, which was in the hands of Messrs. Beauchemin and Desville, opened by a beautifully played duet by these two ladies, followed by songs rendered by Mrs. J. C. Brown and Mrs. Hodgson, while Mrs. W. F. Todd kindly gave an amusing recitation as an encore to her song.

The ladies then sat down to what one of the visitors called a "banquet," which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mrs. Procter, president of the Victoria Institute, thanked all the Langford members for their very pleasant afternoon and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

NEWS OF LANGFORD

LANGFORD, Oct. 24.—All are cordially invited to the Community "Sing-Song" to be held, by kindness of Mrs. Toucher, in Langford Hall on Friday, Oct. 27, at 8 p. m.

Everyone will be glad to hear that after two months without a nurse, Miss Kelly, late of Saanich, has been appointed public health nurse for the Esquimalt rural district. She is now at Metcalch. Nurse Gawley, the late rural nurse, is now residing at Kulkwa, B. C.

Building activities are going on busily at Langford. Mr. W. Prevling has just completed a well-built four-roomed bungalow on the Millstream Road, and on the same road Mr. Richards is beautifying the rough ground into a garden, having just finished a cosy residence.

On the main road, near the garage, Mr. Whitfield, Superior Street, is having a handsome bungalow erected, which is expected to be finished by Christmas, while a little further on Mr. A. Bates has finished the foundations of a future home. Mr. Olson is busily engaged adding four rooms to his house. Mrs. A. Taylor has had useful additions made to one of her bungalows, and at Langford Lake the sound of the hammer is always to be heard.

LADYSMITH NEWS

LADYSMITH, Oct. 25.—Mr. Arthur Wright met with a painful accident last Friday while operating a drill press in his blacksmith shop. His right hand slipped between the cog in the gear and the drill finger was squeezed to the first joint, making it necessary for Dr. Montgomery to amputate the injured digit. It will be necessary for Mr. Wright to remain idle for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright and daughter have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. James Burns at Cumberland and have returned home.

Work on the new Hillier block is progressing satisfactorily. On Tuesday the plasterers started to work, and the contractor hopes that he will be able to complete the building some time next month.

An effort has been made to redeem some of Ladysmith's bonds, but the owners do not appear to have any desire to sell them, having placed them at an almost prohibitory price.

At the meeting of the City Council on Monday evening, after routine business, the Ward Abolition By-Law passed its third reading and the by-law to reduce the representation at the council board from seven to five members took the same course. The vote on the referendum will take place on Thursday, Nov. 5.

The Women's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity Church held their first meeting of the season on Monday evening. It was decided to hold a donation tea in November, in the afternoon, and a party in the evening.

The entire length of Dunsmuir Avenue is being re-tarred, and two blocks, from Third to Fifth Streets, have been completed.

On Friday morning, the little children of Mrs. W. Bradley set fire to the mattress in the absence of their mother. The fire engine turned out in record time and quickly extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

On Thursday morning James Halliday met with what might have proved a very serious accident, when he inadvertently took hold of a live wire when helping to string the service wires to the house of Mr. H. Thompson. He was badly burnt about the arms and hands.

CHEMAINUS

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 25.—Master Jack Howe entertained a number of young friends on Sunday, the occasion being his eleventh birthday. The children all spent a very happy time. Jack had a lot of presents, amongst them was a parrot, which his cousin, Mr. Ernest Chatters, brought him from Australia. Mr. Chatters also brought his nephew, Malvern Chatters, a parrot.

Mr. Howard Hatfield, head sawyer in the Victoria Lumber and Manufacturing Company's mill, had the misfortune to cut one of his thumbs very badly on Monday.

Mrs. E. M. Driesbach, who has not been at all well for some time, left for Harrison Hot Springs on Monday.

Mrs. W. G. Watson, of Vancouver, who had been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Watson, has left for her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Barber-Barkey and Master Joe were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Donald last week.

Mr. Ernest Chatters is the guest of his uncle, Mr. Matthew Howe.

Mr. Gordon Cook, son of the Rev. E. M. and Mrs. Cook, who sustained a very badly bruised right arm last week in the planing mill of the Victoria Lumber and Manufacturing Co.'s mill, is getting along very nicely, but as his muscles were badly torn, it will be quite a while before he will be able to resume work.

Mrs. Rivett Carnac gave a very jolly little informal bridge party last Saturday night.

Mr. H. E. Donald, who had a bad fall last week from the top of his garage and sustained shock and some very bad bruises, is now very much better.

Quite a change has taken place in the weather. The lovely mild, Spring-like weather has given place to cold rain, although wild roses, spiraea, blackberry, dahlias, and many other flowers are still in bloom.

REDUCTION OF WORKING HOURS

Seldom, we imagine, has the danger which may lie in the acceptance and application of a crude generalization been more clearly illustrated than in the conditions which have followed the general reduction in the length of the working hours in this country.

All the illa we are now troubled with are not to be explained merely by the reduction in the working day, but this factor has an important bearing and in view of the greater output in a shorter time which was promised us, compared with the results we have got, it is to be hoped that those who preached the blessings of a shorter day will note the conditions which have followed the application of their doctrine on a large scale. There were not lacking observers at any time who realized that conclusions drawn from a few specialized plants under special conditions could not properly be applied to industry at large, and it is to be hoped that some of the amateur industrialists who used to preach to us under the aegis of the Ministry of Munitions will by now have come to the same conclusion.

The present state of trade in this country has been brought about by many things, some of which are quite outside our control. Others, however, are of our own fostering, and even now much could be done to improve our condition in a comparatively short time if everyone concerned could be brought to a common mind and a common will. Transcending such matters as external debt and the state of foreign exchanges, our great present handicap is our decrease in productivity, and we cannot win back even to a pre-war position until we do more work. It is certainly matter for much satisfaction that in a general way we now appear to be doing better than we have done in the last few years. We have learned something in a bitter school, but we have yet far to go before we approximate to the happy conditions envisaged in the delirious months which followed the Armistice.—Engineering, London.

THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY

Sonora

CLEAR AS A BELL

Queen Anne

A-Period Model Without a Peer

EVER since Sonora was awarded highest score for tone quality at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, its tone has been steadily improved. The present-day Sonora, typified by the Queen Anne, is so far superior in tone to the Sonora which won official recognition, that no comparison is possible.

The Queen Anne model is the happy medium of the Sonora line. Its construction, latest improvements and finishing touches which represent expensive labor but mean so much to those who carefully choose a phonograph, the astonishing, improved tone quality and serviceable motors, are logical reasons why the Queen Anne satisfies all as to merit, superiority and value.

The Sonora is made in many other period and upright styles.

SIMPLE EXPEDIENT TO STABILIZE RUBLE

MOSCOW, Oct. 25.—In connection with efforts being made to stabilize the ruble, the Finance Commission has proposed a new issue of money which would do away with notes running into the denominations of the millions by the simple expedient of chopping off the last six ciphers.

Thus the million ruble note now in circulation would represent one ruble of the issue proposed for 1923.

SAANICH POLICE HOLD ANNUAL BALL

Agricultural Hall Decorated—Reeve and Wife of Police Chief Lead Grand March

The third annual Saanich police charity ball was held last evening in the Agricultural Hall, Saanich, and proved a most enjoyable affair. The hall was decorated unusually well for the occasion with flags and bunting. About two hundred and fifty people attended.

The grand march commenced at 8:15 p.m., being led by Reeve Watson and Mrs. Peter Brogan, followed by Chief of Police Peter Brogan and Mrs. Watson, other police force members, the Saanich Police Commissioners and members of the Saanich Council.

Supper was served by the West Saanich Women's Institute, under the supervision of Mrs. W. O. Wallace. The supper tables were beautifully decorated with vases of yellow chrysanthemums and fern leaves laid upon the tables.

Ozard's four-piece orchestra provided the music for the ball. Card tables were provided on the balcony for those not wishing to dance.

MR. BARROW HEARS PLEA FOR MERVILLE

Minister of Agriculture Sympathetic to Representations From Courtenay-Comox Delegation

COURTENAY, Oct. 24.—Yesterday morning the Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, met a joint committee representing the Courtenay-Comox Board of Trade and the Comox Agricultural Association and discussed the situation at Merville. The minister was entirely sympathetic and heard the plea put forward on behalf of the soldier settlers with the keenest interest, undoubtedly displaying a desire to assist as far as possible in a solution of the problems of the settlement area. This committee will not divide what recommendations were made until a report is presented to each of the organizations represented at the hearing, but enough has been said to lead to the belief that recommendations will be taken into consideration by the department under whose control the Merville settlers are operating, and which, if granted, will have a tendency to solve some of the problems that have faced the community. In speaking of Merville yesterday one of the committee men, who has had long experience in farming, stated that he had the greatest hopes of ultimate success at Merville and that good crops would in the future be produced there.

The local court house was crowded to the doors last night to hear the case of Victor Beckwith, charged with attempted arson. Mr. P. E. Harrison acted as prosecutor for the City of Courtenay, and Mr. E. S. Cunliffe, of Nanaimo, defended. Magistrate James, sitting on the case, sent it to a higher court and the accused will come up at the assizes in Nanaimo in November.

News Notes
Mrs. John Idens, Comox, is at St. Joseph's Hospital, having undergone an operation for appendicitis. The cairn erected at Sandwick by the people of Comox to the memory of those men from this district who fell in the Great War will be unveiled on Sunday, November 12, at 2:30 o'clock, by Colonel J. W. Warden, who raised the 102nd Battalion, North British Columbia, and commanded them during the big conflict. The cairn is situated at Sandwick, on the Island Highway, one mile from Courtenay.

Beauties of All Races

Women of some 50 nations now whiten teeth in this way

Do you know that millions of people, all the world over, are now cleaning teeth in a new way? One result is whiter, prettier teeth. You see them everywhere today.

If you don't know that method, we urge you to make this delightful test. See what it means to you.

Why teeth discolor

Teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, which no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat. So, under old methods, tooth troubles constantly increased, and beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two combatants now

Dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants were embodied in it. Now this Pepsodent has come into worldwide use, largely by dental advice.

Other new effects

Other results were found to be essential, and Pepsodent brings them. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits, for they may ferment and form acids.

Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents. And these combined effects are fast creating a new dental era.

You'll quickly see

These benefits are quickly seen and felt. One week will convince you that Pepsodent does what nothing else has done. The results will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will soon realize that this method is important, both to you and yours. And, when you know that, you will not return to ineffective ways. Cut out the coupon now.

GREEK MILITARY MEN FACE COURT-MARTIAL

Allegation That Prince Andrew, Brother of ex-King, Aided Disaster by Refusing Order

ATHENS, Oct. 24.—According to the latest report, the former government officers and military chiefs arrested by the revolutionists at the time of the dethronement of King Constantine will be tried by an extraordinary court-martial.

An investigator has been sent to Corfu by the commission in charge of the inquiry to question Prince Andrew, brother of ex-King Constantine, on the charge that, while at the head of an army corps in Asia Minor, he refused to execute an order, thus contributing to the disaster to the Greek army.

LABOR OBJECTS TO MIDWEEK POLL DAY

Complaints Met With Argument That Reduction in Working Hours Eliminates Disadvantage

LONDON, Oct. 25.—There is not much doubt that the Labor party will make a strong protest against polling day being fixed for Wednesday instead of a Saturday. A royal proclamation will be issued tomorrow which will automatically fix the date of the election as November 15. On the other hand there is nothing to prevent the postponement of the appointment until Monday next, which would make election day Saturday, November 18. However, the Labor party will have it stated against him that the fixing of polling on Wednesday was a party manoeuvre. At the same time it is pointed out that in recent years the working hours have been so much reduced that workers are at no disadvantage in midweek polling.

Premature Speech

Arthur Henderson's speech in the Newport by-election, in which he talked about labor being out for a "war against private enterprise," will certainly cost labor many votes, despite the fact that the revised version of what he did say has now belatedly appeared. The fact is that Mr. Henderson was speaking at a time when the collapse of the Coalition was not deemed imminent, or he would have expressed himself differently.

CEMETERY PLANS ARE APPROVED BY BOARD

Development Will Probably Start on Royal Oak Site Within Week—Road Grade Five Per Cent

The engineer's plans for the development of the new cemetery at Royal Oak were approved by the Cemetery Board at a meeting in the City Hall yesterday afternoon. It is expected that development work will commence on the site within a week. The engineer employed by the board has had the assistance of a consulting engineer who is an expert in cemetery planning and who has been at work here for the last ten days, having concluded his labors yesterday.

The plans approved are drawn along the lines of the modern lawn park cemetery. Development for interment purposes will be confined for the present to seven or eight acres, with work on additional ground for beautification. The entrance to the cemetery will be from the East Saanich Road, three-quarters of an acre of land having been specially reserved to provide an easy grade entrance. The main road will be twenty feet in width, of macadam construction, and nowhere will the grade exceed five per cent. They have been laid out in beautiful curves, and blind ends have been eliminated.

A natural amphitheatre on a hillside is being developed for use for memorial services, etc. "It can be taken for granted that few high monuments will be allowed in the cemetery," said Alderman Reginald Hayward, chairman of the Cemetery Board, last night. He stated that before long it would be necessary to employ the services of a landscape gardener on the site.

The matter of building a chapel has been left in abeyance for the time being.

The board appointed a committee to draft by-laws for the new cemetery.

A CHALLENGE TO CONSERVATIVES

enrollment of all the European countries as its members.

"I am in favor," he declared, "of making every reasonable concession in order to induce the United States to associate itself with that great body if it can be accomplished. For until you get all the nations of Europe in (and I still think you can get the United States there) the League of Nations will be crippled. Working with the United States of America ought to be one of the chief purposes of any government. There is more in common between us than with any other land. Our ideals approximate in a way that probably the ideals of no other two countries do. If these two countries would work together it would be a most sure guarantee for the just peace which is the only lasting peace."

The remainder of the former Premier's speech dealt with home politics. In it, Mr. Lloyd George after titling at Reginald McKenna for changing his allegiance from Asquith to Bonar Law, advocated improvement in trade and increase in employment, urged stern economy and insisted that capital and labor must work together.

Regarding the attitude to be adopted toward the coming elections, Mr. Lloyd George said: "Labor has declared ruthless war upon us. In self defence, therefore, you have to fight and resist the onslaughts of the Socialist party of this country."

A New Eton

England is to have a new Eton at historic Stow House. I write "historic" without any clear idea of its ancient history, though I believe it once belonged to the Duke of Buckingham. But the modern tale of Stow House is quaint enough, for it was the seat of the peer who married the blacksmith's daughter not long ago. Then it passed into the hands of the Mr. Shaw, whose name blazed like a comet for a brief moment through the London press in connection with the "honors" sale. In other days these things would have elicited a ballad and a lampoon; in these drab times there is only a passing paragraph.

Canadians who like to send their children for part of their education in England will appreciate the present dilemma of the average English parent obliged to meet the greatly increased cost of education. A boy of Eton today means spending £300 a year, and with the diminished income of what used to be the ruling class this is often impossible, and Eton, Harrow and Rugby are fast becoming the playground for the sons of wealthy tradespeople.

The Eton house fees are to be less than £200 a year, so the new school, which is organized by a committee including Major Boyd-Carpenter, M.P., will do something towards solving the problem, as it will still be open as a public school for £40 boys.

Canadian Teachers in London

Last Sunday very interesting things were said about education at the other end of the social scale by the English and Canadian teachers under the London County Council, who met at the pleasant rooms of the British League of Emigrants. One young English teacher told of her experiences during her school year in British Columbia. She quite evidently loved the life and the children she had taught. One of the things which astonished her most was the friendly attitude of the street car conductors, who often made a car wait for them on a late morning.

The Canadian teachers are spending a year in London were no less enthusiastic. They are keenly interested in their work among the London children in the Board schools, and in their spare leisure time they thoroughly enjoy seeing all the places they have read about. Another thing they thoroughly appreciate is the interchange of ideas and points of view whereby they understand much that was hitherto ignored. Both English and Canadian teachers agree that the first aim of education should be the formation of character and the adaptation of instruction given to the practical needs of the child.

Bit of France in London

At an interesting cosmopolitan luncheon given by Madame Bohm, director of the Institut Français du Royaume Uni, I heard some details of the fascinating programme of French lectures for the coming season. The brilliant French novelist, Colette Willy, whose latest book, "La Maison de Claudine," is attracting so much attention, is coming over to talk on beauty and style, and Andre Beaunier and Pierre Benoit are also coming. People so often say "I wish I spoke French better," and ignore that at Cromwell Gardens in the heart of London they find a miniature university, part of whose raison d'être is to supply that lack.

First Picture Show

The independent gallery staff, even minus the moving spirit of Mr. Percy Turner, who is now exhibiting and lecturing in Canada on the work of the modern French and English schools, has opened an Autumn show in its rooms in Great Street of the work of Cezanne, Segonzac, Roger Fry, Kenneth Morrison, Derain, etc. At the same time an irate artist is loudly demanding why the work of this school should be given a house room at the Tate Gallery. Personally I like the theories of these gentlemen much better than their pictures, which present too many affirmations for the unskilled imitator. They will tell you that their work is the normal evolution of the art of Poussin, that its main purpose is to combine a present-day simplicity of statement with classic harmony of design, the design that was cast overboard by the Impressionists in their effort to interpret light. The theory is attractive as theory, but you instinctively cling to the conviction that one picture like Beaudouin's "Femme qui se chauffe" in the Luxembourg Museum is worthy twenty of one of Vanessa Bell's revolting nudes.

The development of seedless grapes is meeting with some success.

DR. J. S. PLASKETT LECTURES TO ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY

Lantern Slides Depict Some Noted Contemporary Astronomers at Famous Gatherings

As the mover of the vote of thanks to Dr. J. S. Plaskett noted last evening after his lecture on "Famous Present-Day Astronomers," it is easy to find records of the leading men of science from the time of Galileo down to the men of a generation ago, but it is another matter to find out anything about the great astronomers of our own day. However, Dr. Plaskett has furnished a great deal of just the kind of information that one would want about these noted men. A series of slides used by way of illustration suggested something of the personality of the different gentlemen referred to by the speaker, the majority of the pictures having the additional interest of association, as a great number were photographs of groups "snapped" during some of the informal periods of noted gatherings of astronomers. Mr. Harry Plaskett opened the lantern, and Mr. Harper, president of the local astronomical society, presided.

"What astronomy owes to Canada it probably owes to Dr. King," said Dr. Plaskett, at one point, with a generous appreciation of one who formerly held the important office of director of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, and who was physicist at Mount Wilson. Dr. Plaskett acknowledged his personal debt to Dr. King when he added: "What I am in astronomy I owe to Dr. King." Dr. King, while at Ottawa, held the additional office of commissioner of international boundaries and superintendent of the geodetic survey.

Generous Tributes

From the generous tributes which the speaker paid to many other astronomers whom he had met on frequent occasions, Dr. Plaskett gave the impression that as a profession they are admirable both as friends and associates. Among those whom he mentioned with particular appreciation was Professor Hale, Dr. Campbell, director of the Lick Observatory, and noted for his work on radial velocities "which has never been exceeded for accuracy." Professor Frost, director of the Yerkes Observatory, "and one of the finest men I ever met," commented the lecturer, Dr. Brashers, Dr. Pickering, director of Harvard College Observatory; Miss Cannon, whom he characterized as most noted woman astronomer in the world; whose greatest work is "Classification of Stellar Spectra"; Professor Barnard, now at Yerkes Observatory, a man who started life as a photographer in Tennessee, and as an amateur astronomer "managed to discover comets enough to put himself through university with prizes offered by the American government." A very remarkable and very lovable man, with one great fault; he works himself to death," commented the lecturer, Professor Turner, of Cambridge, Sir Frank Dyson, of Greenwich, Astronomer Royal of England, "not only a very able man, but a very modest and kindly man." Professor Newall, director of Solar Physics Observatory at Cambridge; Father Cortes, one of the very genial members of several astronomical gatherings which Dr. Plaskett had attended; "the life of every meeting which he went to, and a very good musician as well as a good astronomer."

Englishmen

Professor "Barton" of Cambridge, England, "characteristically modest and in his thorough methods exemplifying the difference between the English and American methods." The American astronomers can get a great many more observations, but they don't seem to take the same pains in discussing the observations they do get; while on the other hand the English astronomers do not get so many observations, but they discuss them with great completeness," noted the lecturer, referring to the masterly way in which Professor Stratton dealt with the Nova Geminae after a single observation. Exceptional in likeableness among the otherwise too often rather gruff and arbitrary German astronomers was Schwarzschild, "a very charming man, essentially a theoretical astronomer, but an observer as well, and very charming and genial gentleman notwithstanding the fact that he was a German. It was a great loss to the world when he died in Belgium during the war." Before speaking of Schwarzschild, however, Dr. Plaskett named Professor Fowler, physicist, one of the English astronomers, whose work for many years had been the identification in the laboratory of celestial spectra.

Others Named

Others whom Dr. Plaskett named, and whose work had placed them among the leading men of science of the day, were Schlesinger, director of Yale Observatory, until a year ago at Alleghany Observatory; Newall, of Cambridge; Hartmann, of Göttingen, Germany; McCormick, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh; Professor Mitchell, Professor Chant, who headed the Canadian expedition to Australia to observe the eclipse; Mr. A. W. McCurdy, "to whom Victoria owes a great debt of gratitude for what he did in getting the details of the big 75-inch telescope put through, principally in connection with the negotiations with the Provincial Government," interpolated the speaker; Mr. Napier Denison, head of the Meteorological Observatory, Victoria; Sir George Airy, former Astronomer Royal, England; Max Wolf, Heidelberg, a Russian; Kayser, director of the Physical Laboratory at Bonn; Ricci, an Italian; Schuster, a well-known English physicist, who was at Mt. Wilson; Professor Kapteyn, a Dutch astronomer, "who is unique in two achievements," amplified Dr. Plaskett, referring to his success first in calculating the mass of the sun, and the mass of the stars, and second, in getting astronomical distances, that the whole field of the heavens was beyond the range of study of any individual astronomer, and that it would be better if observers agreed to divide the sky into certain regions for purposes of study, each astronomer studying all the stars he could within the areas assigned to him. "Consequently not only would the labor be lessened, but the results would be better."

Backlund, a Swedish Astronomer

Backlund, a Swedish astronomer, director of the observatory at St. Petersburg, was among the foreign astronomers for whom Dr. Plaskett expressed much liking. Biologically, an authority on radial velocities, was associated with Backlund. Comstock, the American; Abbott, Kuiner, a German who received the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society in 1910, and returned it during the war after Britain and Germany became sworn foes; Argelander, who prepared the Bonner Durchmusterung, generally known as the "B.D.," the first general star catalogue, and now used all over the world; Professor Kayser, a German, author of the five-volume "Handbuch"; Count Pluvial, the Frenchman, "next to Dr. Campbell, one of the most noted eclipse observers in the world," and a few others were named by Dr. Plaskett as their photographs appeared in some of the lantern slides projected on the screen.

Pictures were also shown of some of the noted observatories where the lecturer, Dr. Plaskett, had been, bringing astronomers from all parts of the world to some common rendezvous. These had been pleasant gatherings. One of the latest of such meetings which he had attended had been a few weeks ago at the Yerkes Observatory. Interesting pictures were shown of some of the groups on the occasion of the 1910 meeting of the American Astronomical Society held at Harvard Observatory, and which continued to Mount Wilson for the Solar Union meeting there, the members proceeding later to Flagstaff, Arizona, to see the Lowell Observatory, and also visiting the Grand Canyon.

"The Germans with the English and Americans are foremost in advancing astronomy today," said the speaker at one point, generalizing. He indicated briefly the characteristics of each; the characteristic of the Germans was that they were meticulous in detail, although they lacked the grasp of the subject shown by the English, and had not the wealth of observation that the Americans had.

DENY REPORTS OF YUKON MAIL DELAY

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Denial of the allegations made by the directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce was made last night by James P. Murray, district superintendent of postal services, and Francis E. Harrison, postmaster at Vancouver. "Only in rare instances is there any delay in dispatching mails from the North to Victoria through the post office at Vancouver," said Mr. Murray. "The mail from the North is in the Vancouver post office fifteen minutes after the boat docks, and it is usually sorted and ready to go on the Victoria boat in another fifteen minutes."

ROD AND GUN

Sportsmen and lovers of the outdoors ought to find a lot of solid pleasure in the perusal of the November issue of Rod and Gun in Canada. The usual collection of stories, articles and features is not only extensive and generous as usual, but it is of particularly high quality as well. Raymond Thompson is the author of a thrilling tale, entitled, "The Scourge of God," while Mad Cassidy is a charmingly illustrated article that is full of interest. The department is all instructive and well-balanced. A feature is a complete table of the trapping laws of the provinces of the dominion, while the trap line department, edited by M. U. Bates, offers a wealth of valuable information which the trapper will not want to miss. Rod and Gun in Canada is published monthly at Woodstock, Ontario, by W. J. Taylor, Limited.

ORIENTAL PROBLEM DIFFICULT TO SOLVE

MR. JOHNSON DISCUSSES QUESTION IN "UNITED EMPIRE"

Says British Columbia Regards the Assimilation of Asiatic Population as Impossible

Mr. Lukin Johnson's thoughtful article on "British Columbia's Oriental Problem" is one of the most interesting of the contributions to the September issue of The United Empire Journal, the official organ of the Royal Colonial Institute, which Johnson goes into the subject and con with a thoroughness which is all the more creditable because of the short space into which he packs his arguments.

It is a fair statement that British Columbia is fully sympathetic towards Japan, of whose loyalty to her treaty obligations during the war she had direct evidence. She realizes that there can be no security for peace in the Pacific while international jealousy and envy exist, and she is keenly alive to the necessity of arriving at some modus vivendi with her Oriental neighbors. At the same time British Columbia, through her own experience and that of the Pacific states of the world, is fully aware of the fact that the Orientals, as a whole, are not yet ready to accept the conditions of the West, and that the clash of conflicting ideals and of widely differing civilizations is too pronounced to permit of the fusion of the two peoples into a single race, and from this point he proceeds to show some of the more cogent reasons why the anti-Asiatic feeling that he does against the unlimited admission of the Oriental to the economic aspects of the industrial and social, and has been aggravated in the West by the indifference of the East to a question which has no immediate concern for them.

Lower Standards

In white men's countries the labor of the yellow man is rewarded far above his actual requirements, in the view of the white man. The living prevailing among the yellow races, Mr. Johnson states, bringing out one of the oft-quoted arguments in precipitating the debate on the economic aspects of the question. But while arguing for the restriction of Oriental immigration, the writer recognizes the merits of the race. He deems the more assimilation of the Orientals desirable, the more assimilation of the white man, with the idea of making this province their home. They desire to become citizens in the fullest sense of the word. They seek to be regarded as equally good British citizens as white men, and all their plans are laid for permanent residence. Unlike the Chinese, they are by no means content to undertake only menial tasks, as to be found in all lines of commerce, and are aggressive competitors in many trades. The Chinese, who "in the industrial, unobtrusive person he always was," has brought with him, his faults and vices as well as his virtues. Through the sweat and blood and down the Pacific coast enormous quantities of opium and other drugs are smuggled in every year through the agency of the Chinese. In the cities there are scores of opium dens, while largely through their moral laxity and cupidity, the drug habit is gaining an ever-increasing hold on the white population."

Figures are given to show just how from a foothold the Oriental has got in British Columbia. The last census of five Chinese landlords own 2,500 acres of irrigated land in one block. In the same district fifteen Chinese own an additional 1,900 acres. Near Vernon 47 Chinese own 1,100 acres. In the Fraser Valley 4,000 acres of fruit lands are owned and 400 acres leased by Japanese. Within six miles of Vancouver Chinese lease some 2,000 acres. Chinese produce 25 per cent of the entire potato crop of the Province. The Japanese population in Vancouver numbers 7,000; the Chinese, 2,000. The high rate among Japanese is such, the writer states, that "even should immigration be entirely stopped in future, the natural increase in population would, in time, present a serious problem. The number of births of Japanese in the Province having increased from 20 in 1910 to 457 in 1920, and of Chinese from 114 in 1910 to 260 in 1920."

"British Columbia regards assimilation of the Oriental population as impossible," says Mr. Johnson, concluding by calling attention to the "grave complications" which may result from further immigration of Asiatics, by reason of the present population of Oriental is throwing on the hands of succeeding generations "a problem ten times more difficult of solution than exists today."

THE LONDON STAGE

By E. Montzambert

Theatrical managers have been busily playing at General Post, so that it is difficult for theatregoers to be sure if by the time they get to the house it is a play of the way it is, or hasn't moved on or off as the case may be. "The Way of an Eagle" has been transferred from the Adelphi to the Aldwych. That makes it necessary for Mr. Donald Calhoun to transfer his amusing farce "Double or Quit" from the Aldwych to the Kingsway, whence "The Limerick" has vanished. At the Adelphi they are preparing for "The Island King," a musical play of which more anon.

I hope the Regent's hall start with "Body and Soul" isn't prophetic, for though it is out of the way it is big and comfortable when you get to the purloins of St. Pancras. Mr. Arnold Bennett hasn't been able to interest enough people in his "Milestones" to get it on, so the play will soon give way to a Czech-Slovak play called "The Life of an Insect."

A friend of his tells me that Mr. Knobelock and Mr. Bennett are once more collaborating. Judging by "Milestones," which has been revived, they have more theatrical luck together than apart.

The future historians of the London post-war stage will certainly ask why so many of the best English actresses were seen so seldom. I have the answer, but the question is pertinent at a time when Mrs. Pat Campbell is allowed to play at one-night stands and such extraordinary good actresses as Miss Miriam Lewis and Miss Laura Cowie are noted as returning to a stage they should never have been allowed to leave.

Among the other fine actresses who are too seldom seen are Miss Halide and Miss Laura Cowie.

Miss Laura Cowie is now playing Mary Stuart in Mr. John Drinkwater's much heralded play of that name at the Everyman Theatre. The present form of the play differs a good deal from the version presented in New York, but it is a very different affair. Frankly I wish he had omitted that easy device of a prologue to explain the argument of his play—that Mary Stuart was a noble woman, and that her efforts to discover a noble mate worthy of her. The play itself, left in Miss Cowie's capable hands, does that. The introduction of the scene from the life of the distressed deserted young husband and the philosophical counsellor only confuses and irritates, partly because neither the acting of Mr. Bird as the husband nor of Mr. H. O. Nicholson as the aged friend was convincing enough, and partly because vagrant affections of the unseen modern wife and the aspirations of Mary Stuart have but little in common. Of Miss Cowie's acting in the title role it is difficult to find words of adequate praise. She was royal, restrained, beautiful and pathetic. Every gesture told, and she received the ovation she merited. This talented actress is the wife of the playwright and novelist, Mr. John Galsworthy, and her last London appearance was in her husband's musical extravaganza "Now and Then," when she played Queen Elizabeth.

Mr. Harcourt Williams in the less attractive part of Darnley gave a wonderful picture of that compound of madness, cunning, jealousy and nasty lawlessness, played with dash and skill. Miss Clara Morris as Mary Stuart, and Douglas Jeffreys in the minor part of Randolph did very good work, and anyone who has the courage to see the time under Sir Frank Benson in the old days. The performance as David Garrick in the new play of that same name by Mr. Louis Parker, just produced at Court, is a pleasing one, even if in the celebrated drunken scene Sir Charles Wyndham could not have given him a heavy handicap. All the critics have abused Mr. Parker for his play, which they say is untheatrical and sentimental, but the audience were thoroughly pleased to see Dr. Johnson, Goldsmith, Sir Joseph Reynolds and "Bozzy" the stage with all their well-known mannerisms intact, though I could not help wishing that the playwright had not given so unattractive a portrait of Goldsmith. Mr. Roy Bford gave an admirable portrayal of Dr. Johnson, who is very much to the fore just now, as he is also the hero of a film story just released. George Mallett as Sir Joshua Reynolds, Arthur Cullin as Sir Wm. Dunstable, the merchant father of the stage-struck girl Garrick tries to disillusionize by pretending to be drunk. Diana Brook as her friend Rosa Cavendish and Miss Madge Compton as pretty Pamela Dunstable herself, all did their share in providing a very good evening's entertainment. Not the least attraction of which was the exquisite stage setting in the last act of Rannalagh, looking like nothing so much as a Fragonard picture come to life.

REMEDY FOR DIABETES RELIEVES SUFFERERS

New York Doctor Points Out, However, That Cure Not Absolute—Cause of Disease

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The discovery of Professor F. C. Banting, Toronto University, of a diabetes treatment will mean the saving of innumerable lives by obviating suffering in acute cases. Furthermore, its use may lead within a measurable period of establishing a definite cure for the disease.

This is the opinion of Dr. Herman O. Mosenthal, of New York, recognized authority on diabetes, regarding Professor Banting's discovery of "a pancreatic extract of high value in treating diabetes." The so-called serum, Dr. Mosenthal added, is in no sense a cure.

I regard Dr. Banting's achievement as one of the greatest to be attributed to modern medical science," said Dr. Mosenthal. "Such a pancreatic extract as he has succeeded in producing has been arrived at by foremost men of the medical profession during many years. No one succeeded in obtaining what was needed until the extract now available, in a limited sense, was produced."

"The extract is invaluable as an aid to the treatment of diabetes. But it is not a cure. This fact cannot be too emphatically stated, because there is widespread belief that the extract does cure. However, the discovery marks a step in the direction of cure."

"What the extract does is to enable the patient to digest starches. Without a certain element of starch the patient cannot survive. Therefore, in critical stages, the extract secured by Dr. Banting will save life by enabling digestion of food without

"Diabetes is caused by absence of a secretion from the pancreas. Normally this secretion goes into the blood and is responsible for the digestion of sugars and starches. Absence of the secretion means diabetes, and diabetes is at present incurable. The severity of the disease is in proportion to the degree of diminution of the pancreatic secretion. The serum which will, it is hoped, soon become available in commercial quantity, replaces the secretion which is not produced naturally."

Dr. Mosenthal said he believed that within a short time means of manufacturing the extract on a large scale would be found, which would cheapen treatment and render it available for general use. A manufacturing concern in Indianapolis, he said, is installing a plant for this purpose.

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER TRY DOSE OF SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back aches or Bladder bothers.

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. (Adv.)
